NEGUS DRAWS UP HIS BATTLE ORDER IN CASE OF EMERGENCY

FRENCH RIOTS DUE TO COMMUNISTS

PREARRANGED PLAN OF ACTION

WORKERS NOT HELD RESPONSIBLE

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.

The anti-Government demonstrations and riots in the French ports have been instigated and organised by Communist agitators; this has been proved early in the review now being held in the various ports concerned in order to establish whether the recent disorders took place according to a pre-arranged uniform plan of action, asserts the press here this morning.

Le Matin declares that immediately before the rioting began three Communist propaganda directors proceeded to Brest, where they gave the local Communist Syndicate final instructions. It is said that only 12 out of 85 demonstrators arrested during the Toulon disorders are older than 20 years, and that one of the 36 rioters still under arrest there has been identified as a grammar school teacher.

A statement issued by the labour leaders of the various parties declares that the workers cannot be blamed for the events, since the majority of these did not take part in the disorders. The fact that a semi-official news agency's account stresses that "not the workers themselves but disorderly elements caused the riots" appears to indicate that official quarters are inclined to share the labour leaders' opinion.

Another message states that considerable anxiety prevails in French shipping quarters, because the repeated strikes among the crews of the French trans-Atlantic passenger liners are causing the foreign travelling public to look at French shipping with misgivings, according to Le Figaro, which declares that instead of 50 passengers who transferred their passages from the French liner Champlain to foreign ships, a far greater number would have cancelled their reservations if the German and British ships sailing from Le Havre had not been booked to their full capacity.—Trans-Ocean Service.

"FLYING CLIPPER'S" FINE FEAT

Own Record Broken By 50 Minutes

Honolulu, Yesterday.

The "Flying Clipper" has arrived, having taken 17 hours 9 minutes on the flight from Alameda. She broke her previous record by 50 minutes.—Reuter.

An earlier message stated that the flying boat "Flying Clipper" took off at 11 p.m. G.M.T. on Friday from Alameda, California, on the first commercial flight to Honolulu en route to Wake Island.

Rear-Admiral William V. Pratt, retired chief of naval operations, is prominently mentioned as the choice for Governor of the Virgin Islands to succeed Governor Paul M. Pearson.

MR. TAO TO BE RELEASED

JAPANESE ADMIT HIS DETENTION

Peiping, Yesterday. For the first time it has been officially admitted that Mr. Tao Shang-min, a member of the Political Council, was detained at the Japanese Legation, when a spokesman told foreign correspondents that Mr. Tao would probably be released soon.—Reuter.

FURTHER TROUBLE REPORTED FROM SIAM

Alleged Attempts To Promote Disaffection In Ranks

Singapore, Yesterday.

Reports indicating that there is trouble in Siam are arriving here from Bangkok, where 15 non-commissioned officers are reported to be awaiting trial for attempting to promote disaffection in the ranks.—Reuter.

LUANTUNG INCIDENT SETTLED

Statement By Japanese Authorities

NO DETAILS DIVULGED

Nanking, Yesterday.

The information is authoritatively issued that a settlement of the Luantung incident, arising out of the murder of General Liu Tsu-chow, has been reached by the local Japanese authorities, but no details have at present been divulged.—Reuter.

A message dated August 5 stated that General Liu Tsu-chi, commander of the Peace Preservation Corps in the Luantung area, was murdered at Luanchow railway station at 4 p.m. the previous day by four men in plain clothes.

The assailants closed in on General Liu and opened fire at close range with automatic pistols, the victim dying almost immediately.

A Japanese gendarme who was patrolling the platform was also seriously wounded, being struck by a flying bullet.

LARGE INTERNAL LOAN

RUMOURS IN BRITAIN

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

London, Yesterday.

Rumours that the British Government is making preparations for the floating of a big internal loan were current in financial circles here to-day.

There are two versions concerning the objects to which the proceeds of the loan are to be applied, one being that they are intended for purposes of economic reconstruction, while according to the other they will be employed for the strengthening of the defence services.—Trans-Ocean Service.

OIL TANK TRAIN BURSTS INTO FLAMES

STATION AND FOREST ON FIRE FOLLOWING COLLISION

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Vienna, Yesterday.

A 32-wagon oil tank train came into violent collision with a passenger train yesterday afternoon at Oberternes, in the Carpathians, on the Kronstadt-Piedal line, according to despatches from Bucharest.

Six oil tanks immediately burst into flames. The fire then spread with lightning rapidity to the remaining wagons, so that not only the two trains but also the railway station was soon enveloped in flames. The adjoining forest also took fire. Railway workers, engine drivers, guards, stokers and station officials fled to the woods. The fire brigades and soldiery from all the neighbouring districts were soon on the spot, fighting the fire.—Trans-Ocean Service.

HOPEI PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT

Suggested Move To Peiping

JAPANESE REPRESENTATION

Shanghai, Yesterday. A message from Peiping states that General Takahashi, the Japanese military attaché, informed Mr. Shang Chen, Governor of Hopei, that the Japanese hope that the seat of the Provincial Government will be moved from Pooting to Peiping or Tientsin. General Takahashi suggested that if the Provincial Government was not able to move, then its more important offices should be established at Peiping, with the Governor remaining permanently at the old capital.

The Peiping Political Council is reported to favour the plan, as Peiping is the political centre of North China and communications with Pooting are difficult.—Reuter.

WEATHER REPORT

A ridge of moderately high pressure extends from the southern part of the China Sea to the Caroline Islands. The depression is centred about 60 miles to the north of Nagasaki, moving east. Another depression is moving north-east between Tokyo and the Bonins. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, was south-west winds; moderate; cloudy.

ROYAL PRINCES TO LEAD ARMIES

SUPPLY OF MUNITIONS CAUSING ANXIETY

FOREIGN RECRUITS DISAPPOINTED

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.

The Emperor plans in the event of war to fling seven armies of over 600,000 persons into the attack. Some 250,000 men have been armed with rifles and ammunition by the Government, and the remainder are themselves responsible for their personal equipment.

The royal princes will ride into battle leading the armies of the north, south, east and west. The army of the centre will watch over the security of Abyssinia, holding itself ready to be shifted wherever it is most urgently needed. The seven armies are each composed of 30 regiments, one regiment numbering 3,000.

Estimates of Abyssinia's rifle strength range from 300,000 to 1,000,000. It is believed that there are about 200 cannon, the utility of which is speculative, some being 70 years old. Of machine-guns there are about 400, and an equal number of quick-firers. There are eight aeroplanes, only six of which are flight-worthy.

Modern war material, apart from rifles and machine-guns, is considered to be of little use by the Abyssinian militarists, used to guerrilla methods, which will be employed. The Government is seriously concerned with the problem of the munitions' deficiency, but hopes that the endurance, courage, patriotism and mobility of the soldiers will compensate for the lack of organisation and modern war materials.

MANY EAGER RECRUITS

A message from Paris states that the entrance hall of Abyssinia's pocket Legation is daily packed with a motley crowd seeking to join up with the army of the Negus. No volunteers have hitherto been accepted.

"We have received no instructions from Addis Ababa, and we are not signing any one up at present," declared the Ethiopian Minister.—Reuter.

ITALY PURCHASES FOREIGN SHIPS

Air Force Lieutenants Called To Arms

HUGE HOSPITAL ON THE ISLAND OF RHODES

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Rome, Yesterday.

The news that Italian shipping companies have been buying up foreign steamers is now given semi-official confirmation. Although the Italian passenger services have already been considerably curtailed, it has been found necessary to purchase further vessels in order to be able to accelerate shipments to the Italian colonies.

Another message states that all Italian Lieutenants of the Air Force of the year 1929, as well as trained engineers, must report immediately for service, according to a new decree just issued.

A message from Paris states that the island of Rhodes, which is under Italian sovereignty although it is mainly inhabited by Greeks, has now been converted into a huge hospital for Italian soldiers unable to stand the East African climate, according to a press report received there from Athens, which adds that the work of the fortification of the small island of Leros north of Rhodes is likewise being speeded up by the Italian authorities.—Trans-Ocean Service.

ITALY NOT TREADING ON BRITAIN'S TOES

EXPLANATION OF SITUATION

CHANGE IN TONE TOWARDS ENGLAND

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Milan, Yesterday.

A remarkable moderation in tone towards England characterises an article in the "Popolo d'Italia," endeavouring to justify the Italian policy towards Abyssinia, and clearly revealing a desire to substitute arguments for merely hostile criticism.

The journal says that Italy urgently requires an outlet for her excess of population and once she is in a position to administer a colonial territory susceptible of development she will become a conservative State, not only for herself but also for her friends.

England's unfriendly attitude, according to the paper, would appear to be dictated by the erroneous supposition that Italy will obstruct the British interests in Africa, whereas the exact contrary is the case. Italy is only turning her attention to Abyssinia to avoid claiming for herself British or French mandated territories.

BRITISH VIEWPOINT

Mr. Eden To Return To England To-day

London, Yesterday.

It is learned that the line reached which Britain will take at the three-Power conference on the Italo-Abyssinian dispute opening in Paris next week was determined before Mr. Stanley Baldwin left last Wednesday for Aix-les-Bains, but it would be incorrect to designate this decision as a definite plan.

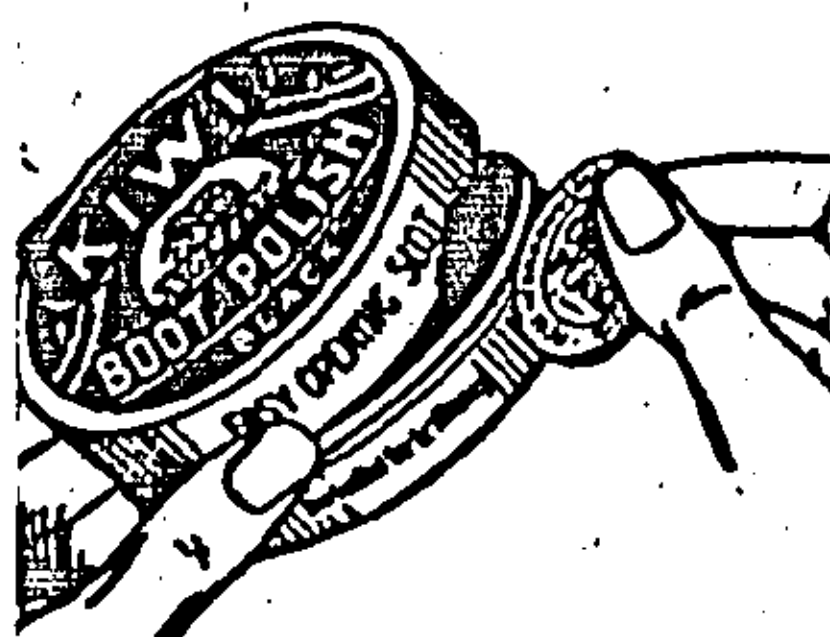

Mr. Anthony Eden will return to London to-morrow, and he will spend Monday consulting with Foreign Office experts on points and details. He has no pre-arranged agenda for the conference. Preliminary talks will take place on Wednesday and Thursday, and the formal conversations are not beginning until Friday.—Reuter.

SHORT STORY

"Nicolle Goes South"

By PHYLLIS CHALUMEAU

TANTE ADELE was one of those bright, breezy little persons. When she came to stay with the Porte family in the cold little northern town of Saint Jean she seemed to bring the sunshine of the Midi with her. They were used to the climate, but Tante Adele complained bitterly about the fog, the damp and the narrow-mindedness of the inhabitants. "Celine," she said to her sister, "I do not know how you bear it; the climate and this stupid little town. And as for 'la pauvre petite Nicolle,' what prospects are there for a good marriage for her? Tell me, what have you done about it?"

"Well," said Madame Porte, "Papa has provided her with a good dowry, but there are few opportunities in Saint Jean. There are practically only the officers at the barracks who are eligible, and they are mostly married, engaged, or unsuitable."

"Then that settles it," said Tante Adele, "she is coming back to Aix with me. I shall have her betrothed this summer, or she will be a Sainte Catherine."

Nicolle herself cared little if she did reach twenty-five without a husband, and her aunt thought it most unnatural that she would be so interested in books and in art.

Spring was turning to summer in Aix-en-Provence. The platane trees were in full leaf, the fountains played on every street corner, and the townsfolk were leaving their apartments and moving out to their summer homes. Nicolle arrived at her aunt's villa, not half an hour's walk from the market-place, situated on the slope of a hill overlooking the quiet calm of Aix, with its spires and towers and red roofs.

There were flowers everywhere, in the hedgerows, in the fields, and on Tante Adele's terrace, which resounded to the gay laughter of the young men and women who came and went. Guy, Tante Adele's only son, brought home all his friends from the University, gay young men with extremely modern views, who discussed politics, love, and foreign affairs interminably. There were young officers, Indo-Chinese students with suave manners and much culture, an English professor, and some military doctors, who would drive out from the heat and stuffiness of Marseilles. The young ladies of the town were allowed to spend long afternoons on the terrace, under the expert chaperonage of Tante Adele, who liked nothing better than to see romance blossom under the shade of her acacias, and with no daughter of her own, there was no reason for her to be jealous.

Having presented her niece to the company and being well satisfied with the effect she seemed to have made, she said to Nicolle: "Now, my dear, I shall tell you which are the most suitable of the men you have met," and she proceeded to mention three or four.

"And the tall dark doctor from Marseilles?" asked Nicolle. Tante Adele laughed. "Gabriel Gallinard? You are not the only one who would like to make a conquest of the handsome doctor. But he is impregnable. He comes here only to discuss art with your uncle. He was once disappointed in love, my dear, and now . . . and all the girls are crazy about him, especially since he is rich."

"Indeed," thought Nicolle, "we shall see." But she said nothing. As the days passed Tante Adele beamed upon her niece. The very plum of her collection, Paul Besac seemed to be infatuated with Nicolle. He brought her flowers, danced with her often, and sat at her feet as she lay back in her cane chair on the terrace. But his dotting eyes and rapturous glances succeeded in only "annoying" Nicolle, and she would walk over to the group, which would often include Doctor Gallinard, and which would be discussing her favourite subject—art. She and the doctor would always embark upon some lengthy argument which they never grew tired of discussing, and the others would drift away and join other discussions, or dance to the gramophone, or go off to the tennis court. Tante Adele grew really cross with her niece, for, while Gallinard was distinctly fascinating, and also very clever and well-informed, it was well known that he had no intention of settling down, and her niece was wasting her time.

"Surely," thought Tante Adele, "she does not imagine that she can make Monsieur le Docteur propose marriage to her."

When Nicolle's holiday was over, Tante Adele was furious. She could only come to the conclusion that there was something definitely peculiar about Nicolle. No girl in all France could have had better opportunities. And yet Nicolle was so sweet. She was very pretty, attractive, and intelligent, and yet she did not seem to care whether she ever married or not.

The evening before her departure for Saint Jean Nicolle took leave of all her new friends with whom she had spent so many happy, carefree hours, as she was to leave early the next morning to catch the train for Marseilles.

It was a hot, clear night, and a breath of the sirocco was in the air wafted across the Mediterranean from the deserts of Africa. The usual crowd had assembled on Tante Adele's terrace, too listless to dance, sipping iced "citron presses" and discussing "les inconstances du monde."

Nicolle was seated a little apart watching the stars over Aix and the silhouette of poplar trees.

Gilbert Gallinard came up to her and leant over her chair. "Will you walk a moment in the garden with me, Mademoiselle Nicolle?"

Nicolle silently rose and walked down the garden path beside her tall companion.

"I am leaving to-morrow, doctor, I go back to my little dreary town. I shall miss so much the sunshine and gaiety of the Midi."

"You are catching the train from Marseilles early in the morning, is it not so?"

"Yes," said Nicolle.

"I should like very much to have the pleasure of driving you back to Saint Jean in my little car. I have a few days' leave, and if we left early in the morning we could arrive there by nightfall. She is very fast, my little car."

"But, doctor, I could not dream of allowing you to go all the way to Saint Jean. It is nearly five hundred kilometres," protested Nicolle.

"Please don't worry, Mademoiselle. I have business in Saint Jean."

"Business in Saint Jean!" said Nicolle, incredulous that anyone should have business there.

"Yes," replied Gallinard, "I wish to see your mother and father."

"My mother and father!" repeated Nicolle, more incredulous still. "May I ask why?"

"Certainly," said the doctor, thoroughly enjoying the conversation. "I wish to ask them for your hand in marriage."

Nicolle turned and faced Gallinard. She said nothing. He took her in his arms and kissed her lips.

She broke away from him. "And I," she managed to say. "You do not ask if I care about this arrangement, if I should like you for a husband?"

Gallinard took her in his arms again.

"It was so unnecessary, my little one," he murmured, "to say anything about it to you. There are some things which are so much more delicious unsaid. You knew that I was in love with you, and I knew that you wanted me to be, so what need was there for a discussion on the matter? We have all the life for that."

Nicolle did not reply. The kisses her soft lips gave him told him all that he wished to know.

At first Tante Adele did not know whether to be pleased or sorry. Then she smiled radiantly on her niece and kissed her on either cheek. "After all, ma chérie, his family is very good, and he is very rich."

THE END.

SPANISH FASHIONS INVADE PARIS

Below: The latest in Lido wear, knitted in bright colours.

MANTILLAS AND FANS SEEN EVERYWHERE

Classic Influence

ONLY the click of castanets and the sly lilt of romantic music is needed these days to convince one that Paris is not really Madrid. For Paris has succumbed to the classic Spanish influence. And women of fashion have delved into their bureau drawers, lovingly extracting filmy mantillas of blonde and Chantilly lace which date back to the end of the Second Empire's lavish display.

Not only mantillas, but fans have taken Paris by storm, thus shouldering out the Hindu and Persian shawls and sashes of last season, the western adaptations of saris and ihrams. It was even whispered that the "tchatchaf," that quaint garment abandoned by liberated Turks, might find its way to exclusive drawing rooms. But suddenly fans and mantillas appeared.

And so it is that to-day, in the gayest of places, these essentials of a former era have been resurrected. In their folds, both eery and black, garlands of flowers are entwined. Brighter than those products of Nature, they stand out, as in relief, from the pale shades of the gowns of to-day's mode.

CLOTHES TO SUIT YOUR DAUGHTER

WHETHER she's a tailored child or a fluffy bit of curly-headed femininity, there are absolutely right clothes to suit the personality of your small daughter. The same rules that you stick to when you plan your own wardrobe should be applied when you choose hers.

If the diminutive replica of yourself is forever climbing trees or chasing balls that her big brothers have knocked over the fence, don't get her a flock of printed volles and silks with hand-smocking and delicate touches of embroidery for trimming.

Get her one or two, of course, and utter a prayer she'll keep them clean long enough to get to a party unruined. As far as the rest of her wardrobe is concerned, look for interesting, washable and easy-to-iron dresses of percale, gingham, linen and broadcloth.

Incidentally, these so-called practical costumes can be quite as sweet in a tailored sort of way as more frilly ones.

AUREOLES of the medievall Madonnas, especially liked by Agnes, reveal the Italian influence to the fullest. The forehead band that fits closely below the round, flat hat proper offers an unbelievable variety. In one the band is platted of blue velvet; in another it is of black felt—the same as the hat material.

A third uses Titian red for the band and a skullcap framed in the black felt. "aureole," a fourth makes the band in one with the aureole, swirling the left upward and sidewise from the head. Other versions attach heavy gold filigree earrings to the hat.

ITALIAN ART LOAN EXHIBITION

MILLINERS are always ready to dive head first into the next season. But this year, due to the Italian Government's Loan Art Exhibition in Paris, they are firm forecasters of turbans, aureoles and berets for autumn, and mostly turbans in the rich, deep colours of the Italian portraits, and in velvets, brocades, velvet-striped taffetas and jewelled fabrics of the Renaissance.

The first French imports for autumn have taken colour, lines and fabrics from the exhibition, and already milliners are varying the silhouettes to flatter all types of women. Ostrich feathers, glycerined, in tailored treatment for sport hats, and in curled, fluffy type for formal wear, are predicted as the most important garniture.

SUITABLE MAKE-UP FOR SUMMER

SMART society women who are sports enthusiasts have turned to subtle, light-coloured make-up in keeping with the warmer weather and summer clothes. The dark nail polish, rouge and lipstick have been relegated to the winter shelf.

After all, cosmetics that were just right during the winter and early spring months are too heavy and obvious to use when sunshine is bright. Every woman ought to have special preparations to put on from now until October.

You'll find that you can use a lighter and finer-textured powder, too. If you have an oily skin, cream foundations probably will be more satisfactory than liquid types. Try several, however, until you find one that holds your powder in place.

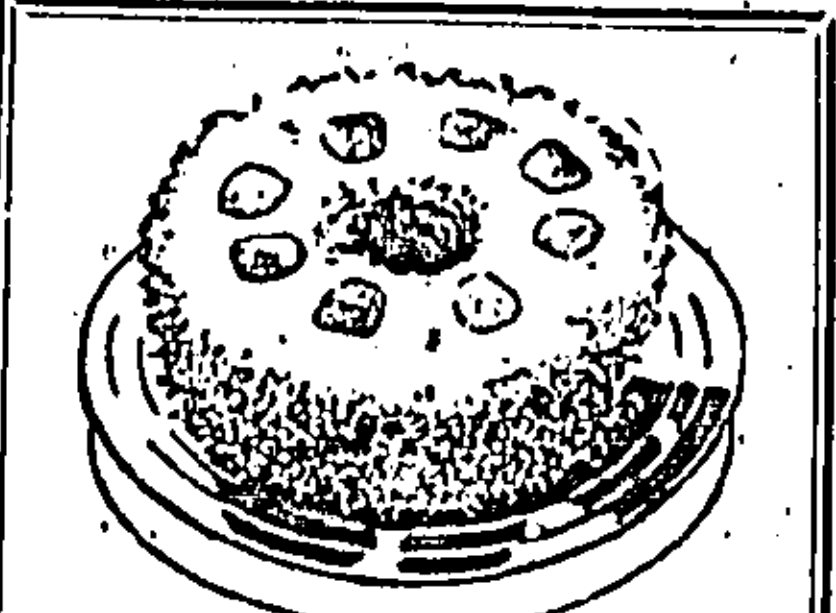

After you have cleaned your face, pat it with a clean cotton pad that has been dipped in a good skin tonic and then let the freshener dry before you start to apply cosmetics.

WRAPS OF VAPOURY MATERIALS

LONG, fitted formal wraps of vaporous materials such as net, lace with widely-spaced patterns, tulle, mousseline, organza and chiffon are newer than jaunty hip-length capes and swagger coats. They cover your arms and back in an intriguing kind of way and allow your dress to show.

GRECIAN LINES FOR TALL, WILLOWY WOMEN

If you are tall and willowy, look at Grecian lines. They are good right now and you're going to hear a good deal more about them later on.

Angel Food with Coconut Frosting
Sift 1 cup pastry flour 3 times. Add salt (pinch) to 1 cup egg whites, beat, add 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar, beat stiff; add 1 1/2 cups sugar, then flour, by folding over and over. Bake in ungreased tube pan in oven that is barely warm till batter rises to top of mould, then increase heat gradually until cake is well browned. When done invert pan and when cool remove cake. Frost with white boiled frosting and sprinkle with coconut and decorate with pineapple segments.

CARRY DRY ROUGE ON HOT DAYS

DURING the season when your skin gets more oily and stays fairly moist from the heat, you ought to carry dry rouge with you. The creamy variety you put on in the morning will be absorbed before noon. From then on you'll have to freshen up with colour from a compact. Be sure that the rouge in your vanity case matches perfectly the cream rouge you put on at home. Nothing is worse than to start with a pinkish shade and then to put a layer of orange-toned rouge over it.

NEW COMPACT FOR SPORTSWOMEN

SMART new leather compacts prove designers of cosmetics cases and manufacturers of make-up have realised at last that the beauty gadgets a woman carries should have a definite relation to the kind of clothes she is wearing.

For tailored suits, riding habits, and active sports frocks, there are charming compacts, covered with alligator, lizard and plain leather in all colours. The majority are round, and, of course, double, so you don't have to carry a separate case for rouge.

The girl who can't manage to make a compact stay in the pocket of a golf dress will love these new leather vanities that have cords attached, ending in fob-like buttons. You simply pass the cord through the buttonhole of the jacket lapel or pocket flap and slip the compact into the pocket.

ARMS AND ELBOWS

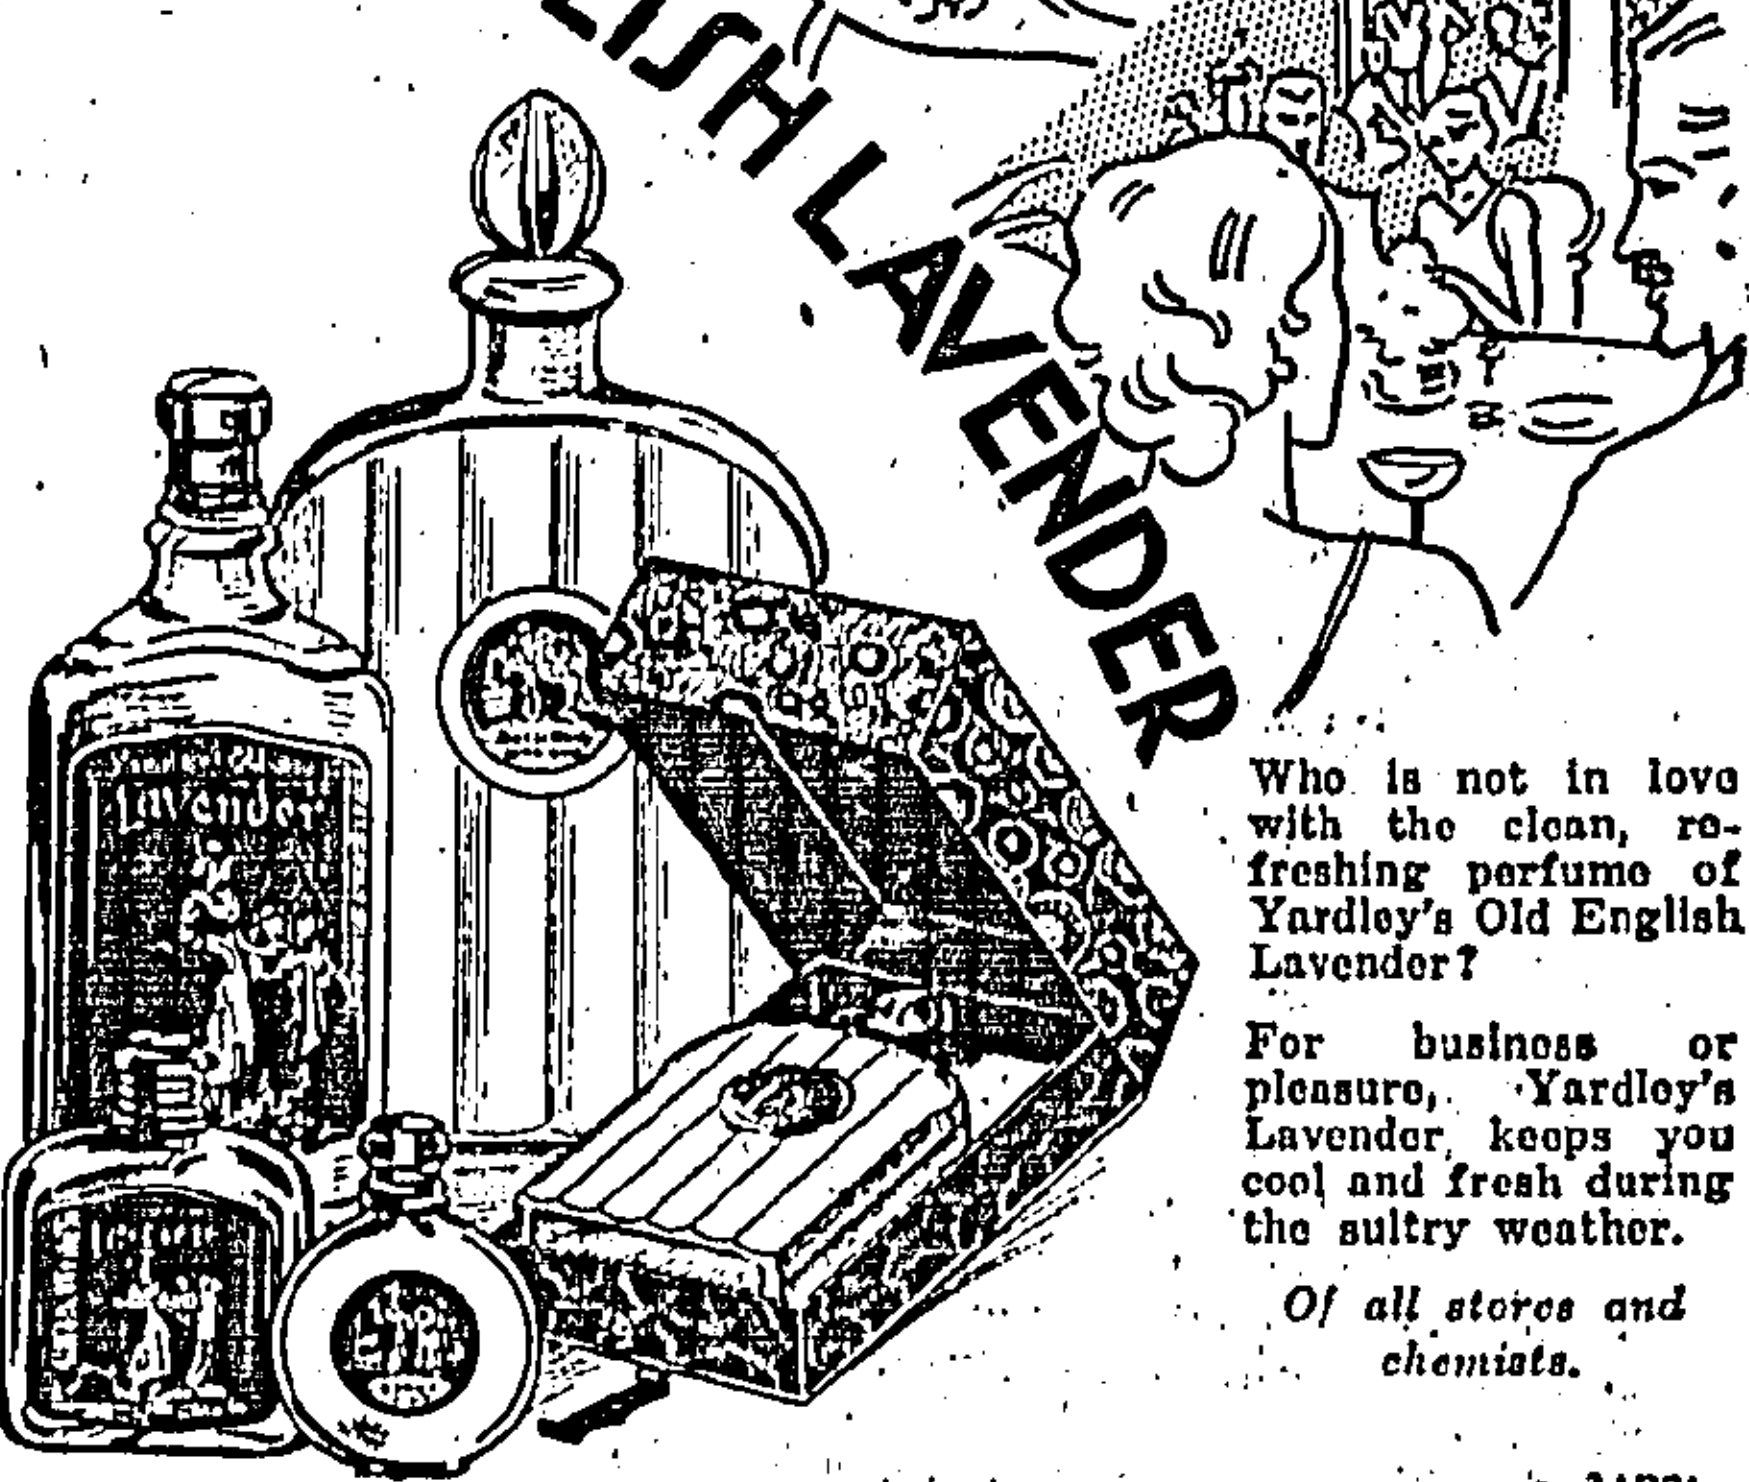

SMOOTH white arms and elbows are requisites of beauty. No matter how pretty your evening gowns and short-sleeved sports dresses may be, much of their charm will be lost if your elbows are rough and discoloured—your arms poorly groomed.

Remember that a bath brush is one of the most useful beauty gadgets you can have. Use it daily on arms, back, shoulders and elbows. Select one with flexible bristles that are stiff enough to stimulate circulation and cleanse the pores, yet not so hard that they scratch and irritate the skin.

After The Bath

When you have finished your bath, use hand lotion or some kind of softening tonic on arms and wrists as well as hands. If your elbows seem slightly yellowish rub them with half of a fresh lemon before you smooth on the lotion.

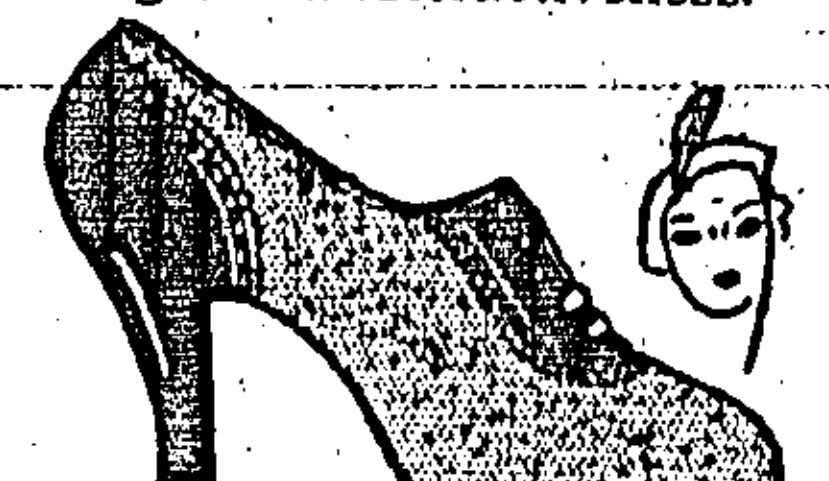

If they are rough and very discoloured rub them lightly with a bit of pumice once or twice a week. In addition, investigate some of the arm and shoulder make-up preparations that are on the market to-day.

CRAIGENGOWER "A" AVENGE BOWLS DEFEAT BY RECREIO

PREPARATIONS FOR CHINA GAMES

LOCAL SWIMMERS BEING SEEDED OUT

UNEXPECTED COLONY REVERSES

THE opening day's elimination heats to determine Hong Kong's representatives in the swimming events at the China National Games to be held in Shanghai on October 10 were held yesterday evening over the South China Athletic Association's 50-metre pool at North Point, when a large gathering of spectators were treated to some fairly good swimming, although no records were broken.

Following their wonderful success last year when they had the services of Kwok Chun-hang, Wong Suen-man, Shek Kam-pui and other very good men, the Hong Kong contingent are this year almost without any talent, most of their swimmers having joined the Kwangtung group.

Last night's spectators were vaguely disappointed at the absence of Miss Yeung Sau-king, who is at present in Army — she was to have opened the King Keong Athletic Association's swimming pool yesterday.

ARMSTRONG LIKELY TO PLAY NEXT TUESDAY

Bowls Programme Month Late

SEVEN GAMES TO BE DECIDED

T. Armstrong, the Civil Service bowler, has recovered sufficiently from the effects of having a poisoned foot and will probably be able to play H. A. Alves in the Fourth Round of the Colony Lawn Bowls Singles Championship at the Kowloon C.C. next Tuesday.

In all there are seven games to be decided, and as they have already been postponed on three occasions it is hoped that the weather will permit them being played off this week.

The games are:

Tuesday
H. A. Alves v T. Armstrong (Kowloon C.C.)
Wednesday
M. J. Medina and J. Cavanagh v S. E. E. E. and J. Shepherd (Kowloon B.G.C.)
A. M. Holland v E. el Arculli (Civil Service)
F. Cullen v A. Hyde-Lay (Recreio)

JAPANESE AND CANADIANS IN BASEBALL CLASH

TODAY'S GAME AT CAROLINE HILL

EUROPEANS WITHOUT THEIR PITCHER

Although the meeting between the Canadians and the Japanese in the Baseball League to-day at Caroline Hill will probably not provide the same standard of play as yesterday, it will, nevertheless be an interesting game to watch. The Japanese beat the U. S. S. Mindanao last Sunday after a very hard fought game and should have no difficulty in winning to-day. They will not have Honda pitching for them; Amaguchi will take his place. Otherwise the team is unchanged. In a friendly game recently the Japanese overwhelmed the Canadians, but to-day their task will be slightly harder.

Canadian Setback

The Canadians, who showed great improvement in last week's game, have unfortunately received a setback in that their catcher, Mike Kondal, will not be playing to-day. He injured his hand in the last game. This has necessitated a reshuffling of the team—Ollivier will have to take his place in order to leave Muir in the all-important position of short stop.

Critchley, who bore the brunt of the pitching last week, will start on the mound and Allreio will relieve him if necessary. Though it is regarded as certain that the Canadians will lose, they are sure to give the Japanese a good game.

Japanese: — Takeda (c), Amaguchi and Maruyama (p) Okawo (1st b.), M. Murata (2nd b.), Y. Hachiuma

TWO BOWLS GAMES TO-DAY

Semi-Finals In Rinks Championship

Two very interesting bowls games are down for decision to-day and both will probably provide the maximum number of thrills.

The two games are in the Semi-final round of the Colony Lawn Bowls Rinks championship.

The rinks are as follows:
J. E. Noronha, C. E. Marques, F. X. Silva and C. G. Silva (skip) v J. Silva, L. F. Xavier, F. V. Ribeiro and H. A. Alves (skip) — (Kowloon Bowling Green).
P. T. Farrell, R. Duncan, J. C. Brown and A. M. Holland (skip) v J. W. M. Brown, R. G. Craig, E. C. Fincher and A. Hyde-Lay (skip) — (Civil Service).

WALES BEAT IRELAND AT WATER-POLO

Wales defeated Ireland by five goals to three in a water polo international match at Neath, after the score had been 1-1 at half-time.

(a.s.), Kawamura (3rd b.), Mikuni (1st), Kuno (c.f.), Yamazaki and Koga (r.f.).
Canadians: — Ollivier (c), Critchley (p), Allreio (1st b.), Walker (2nd b.), Muir (a.s.), A. N. Other (3rd b.), Wells (r.f.), Carnie (c.f.) and Sterling (1st).

Kwok Chun-hang, the Melbourne Centenary, Victorian, Australian, Colony and Interport breast stroke champion (eighth from the right and standing on the left of his mother who is in black), was welcomed back to the Colony at Queen's Pier last Friday by a large circle of friends.

H.K. SPORTS JOTTINGS

By A. E. L.

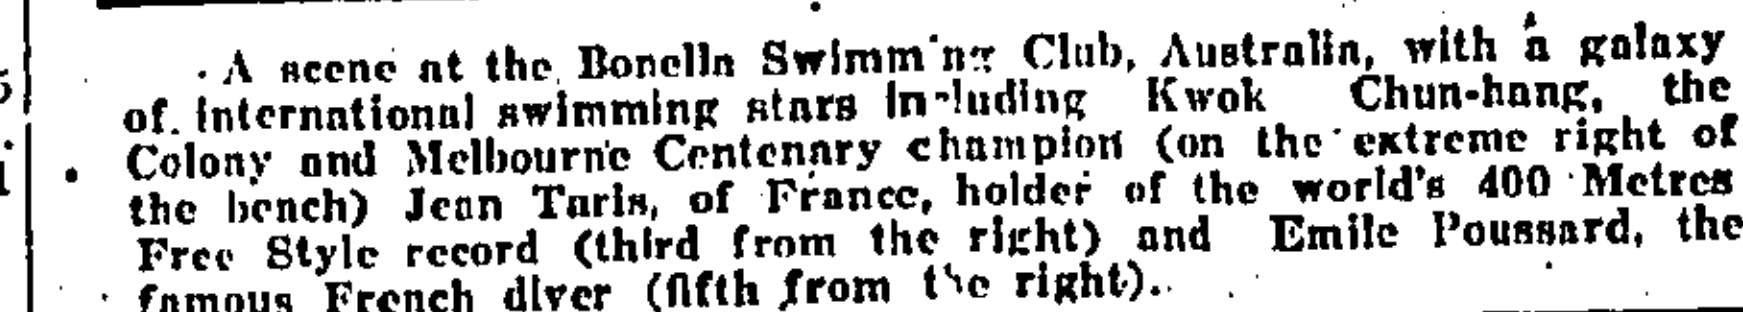

Kwok's Exhibition Swim
KWOK Chun-hang, the Melbourne Centenary, Victorian and Australian 100 Yards Breast-stroke champion, has promised to give an exhibition swim at the European Y.M.C.A. pool within the next fortnight, and every effort is now being made to make the programme accompanying it a very attractive one.

As the Hong Kong Area Swimming Championships commence in about a fortnight's time, it is proposed to hold another "y" quadrangular contest with military teams as a final try-out for them before their championships, and in the same programme include the exhibition swim by Kwok.

Kwangtung's Challenge.
I have now learned that Kwok Chun-hang will be representing the Kwangtung swimming contingent in the China National Games to be staged in Shanghai on October 10. Chan Kichang, Wong Suen-man and other members of the newly formed Mak Ngal Association are also representing Kwangtung.

Loss in Snorting Circles
HONG Kong sporting circles will be robbed of two well-known personalities this month by the departure for Home of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Moutrie, who leave the Colony in a fortnight's time on furlough.

One of the best known figures in local bowling circles, B. Wylie, a past president of the Kowloon B.G.C., has now fully recovered from his illness and will be returning to the Colony shortly.

A scene at the Bonella Swimming Club, Australia, with a galaxy of international swimming stars including Kwok Chun-hang, the Colony and Melbourne Centenary champion (on the extreme right of the bench) Jean Tardis, of France, holder of the world's 400 Metres Free Style record (third from the right) and Emile Pousard, the famous French diver (fifth from the right).

Fine Hockey Player
MRS. Moutrie's loss to Hong Kong hockey will be felt all-round, and particularly by the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club.

Although she did not play in the hockey Interport against Shanghai in February (who was on her honeymoon at the time), Mrs. Moutrie was largely responsible for the Hong Kong Ladies' retaining the Cael Clark Cup for the eighth consecutive year.

One of the finest forwards we have ever seen in the Colony, and a player with a charming personality, Mrs. Moutrie, or Joan as she is known to her friends, will be missed by her wide circle of friends.

"y" Ladies' Capture?
MISS Marjorie Westcott is likely to be seen playing on the left wing for the "y" Ladies' hockey team this coming season.

Major R. Duncan, of Dorsetshire, Miss Westcott is also an experienced lacrosse player.

G. Singh To Play Soccer
G. Singh, the Hockey Interporter and Radio all-rounder, will be playing football for St. Joseph's this year if his hockey engagements do not clash with football.

H. Hannan, who broke his leg last year while playing football for the Radio Sports Club, will be playing hockey for his Club this year. Though very fond of football, he thinks his leg will not be strong enough for the game this season.

It was at first proposed by the Police Football Club to keep the reserves in training by friendly matches but they have now entered the Third Division of the Football League.

BRITAIN's Comeback
BRITAIN hopes to play regularly for the Police this season. He was always a regular member of the team, but was away on home leave at the commencement of last season, and only played in a few games in the latter stages of the League.

Chan Chan-hing, the Chinese Bathing Club's star swimmer and water polo player, is training very hard and hopes to gain recognition in the coming swimming Interport.

The Radio Sports Club have entered the Second Division of the Hong Kong Football League this season. They are making arrangements so that their hockey fixtures do not clash with football as many of their members play both games.

Ex-K.B.G.C. President At Home
J. Mackintosh, formerly president of the Kowloon B.G.C., is now staying in London, although it is not known if he is still indulging in what used to be his favourite pastime — bowls.

C. Burford, who played consistently for the Kowloon C.C. while in Hong Kong, is also in London, but he is still taking a vital interest in bowls.

One of the best known figures in local bowling circles, B. Wylie, a past president of the Kowloon B.G.C., has now fully recovered from his illness and will be returning to the Colony shortly.

W. Macfarlane, a brother of the Football Club bowler, and a competent exponent himself, will be returning from leave in New Zealand and Australia very soon.

Too Many Sports!
PILE, Gough, Parker, Perkins, Blackburn, and Moss, besides being the mainstay of the Police football team, are all good hockey players. Were it not for the fact that football clashes with hockey, the Police Club would have an almost unbeatable team in the Mamak Hockey Tournament.

The Europeans of the Police hockey team are hoping that H. Major will play hockey regularly this season. He played one game for them last season and then gave up the game in favour of tennis.

Major Campbell of the Punjab Regiment thinks very highly of the Indian hockey team of the Hong Kong Police and sees in them the making of a first-class team.

Police Tennis Hopes
THE Police Recreation Club have a wealth of tennis talent at their disposal and the reason why they have not entered more divisions in the Lawn Tennis League is the difficulty of all the players securing leave on the specified afternoons.

The Club will endeavour to enter the "C" and "D" divisions of the Lawn Tennis League next year.

W. C. Ogley, the former Recreio First Division soccer full-back, has consented to play for the Liga do Recreio in the Third Division this season until such time as the players are able to hold their own in the League.

CHINESE WIN OVER AMERICANS IN BASEBALL LEAGUE

Fine Fielding Tells Its Tale

LAWRENCE'S BRILLIANT WORK ON MOUND DISCOUNTED

The failure of the batting of the American team and the excellent fielding of the Chinese provided the features in the game in which the Americans lost by 7 runs to 2 in the Baseball League on the La Salle diamond yesterday.

Lawrence pitched a great game for the Americans and pulled his side out of many an awkward position, especially in the second innings when, with two men on bases and none down, he put the side out without the loss of a run.

R. Assumpcao, another ex-Recreio player, has signed on for the Liga but he will be up against a good half-back line in Lawrence, Maher and P. Xavier.

J. Lawrence, manager of the Club de Recreio team, when they won the Senior league in 1927, will be assisting the Liga in the management of their football team.

Baseball Mishap
MIKE KENDAL, the catcher of the Canadians baseball team will be out of baseball for some time owing to an injury to his hand in last Sunday's game.

Since S. A. Rumjahn and H. D. Rumjahn, the Colony doubles champions, were separated the Indian Recreation Club have not lost a match in the "A" Division of the Lawn Tennis League.

The latest rumour is that M. Shih-han, captain of the Eastern Athletic Association soccer team, will re-join George's this season.

George Lal, the Craigengower tennis player, is also a good water polo player. He plays for the C.B.C. "B" team in the Chinese water polo league.

Lee Tak Kee ("Darky" Lee), St. Joseph's soccer outside-right, will again be playing for the Saints this season.

Amoy Swimming Pool
THE Amoy King Keong Athletic Association Bath was opened yesterday by Miss Yeung Sau-king. A number of prominent Chinese swimmers have gone to Amoy for the occasion and will compete in the various swimming events.

Chan Chan-hing, Chan Chun-man, Fong Chun-yu and Wong Sek-hon and the Misses Yeung Sau-king, Ng Suen-ying, Chan Yuk-fai and Leung Yuk-chun were among those participating.

CIVIL SERVANTS CAUSE UPSET

THE outstanding feature of yesterday's Lawn Bowls League programme was the 22 shots defeat of the Recreio at the hands of the champions, the Craigengower "A" team, in the First Division, the latter combination thus avenging their only defeat this season and firmly establishing themselves as this season's potential champions.

The Civil Service Cricket Club supplied one of the major upsets of the day by beating the Kowloon Docks combination by 11 shots, while the Kowloon Cricket Club recorded their second win this season when opposed to the Indians.

In the Second Division, the Junior champions, the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, were fully extended by the Police, while the Recreio repeated their success over Craigengower by a comfortable margin.

There were no possibles or 7's scored, although the following 6's were registered: G. H. Sherriff's Bowling Green rink (2), A. W. Smith's Police rink, B. W. Bradbury's Craigengower "A" four, J. Watson's Taifoo quartette, G. Costello's Yacht Club four, B. E. Maughan's Yacht Club four, and E. Tuck's Football Club quartette.

SUTCLIFFE'S 212 OUT OF 393

MITCHELL INNES SAVES SOMERSETSHIRE

PATSY HENDREN SCORES 195 IN LONDON "DERBY"

HOLMES' TEST CLAIMS

London, Yesterday. Scoring 212 out of 393, Herbert Sutcliffe not only registered his second double century of the season but was largely responsible for Yorkshire retaining their narrow lead over Derbyshire at the expense of Leicester in the championship race. Passed over for the fourth Test, Sutcliffe has been enjoying a most successful season, among his best feats being 135 not out against Glamorgan; 91 against Derby; 200 not out against Worcester; 110 against Kent; 121 against Glamorgan; 135 against Nottingham; and 212 against Leicester.

Now forty years of age, Sutcliffe made the highest score of his colourful career when he contributed 313 to Yorkshire's first wicket stand of 555 against Essex at Leyton in 1932. Percy Holmes was his partner on that occasion.

A dour stand by Iddon and Ernest Tyldesley failed to give the champions anything more than first innings points over Somerset. Tyldesley's 85 was his highest of the season, his only other outstanding feat being 68 against Middlesex. Iddon, however, had previously scored 131 and 76 not out v. Derby and 124 v. Leicester.

Mitchell-Innes, the Oxford batsman, recorded his fourth century of the season in a successful effort to save Somerset after the follow on—the southerners ended up within 32 runs of defeat! Smart, the former Warwickshire player, was responsible for Glamorgan's win over Sussex. His 151 not out was his third century of the season—he scored 114 not out against the South Africans and 109 against Hampshire.

The London "Derby"

Hendren's 195 in the London "derby" was his third century of the season. He has scored 84 against Sussex, 99 not out v. Lancashire, 100 v. Hampshire, 114 v. Somerset and 195 v. Surrey. Human's only other score of note was 77 v. Warwickshire.

Fishlock, a young member of the Surrey ground staff, scored 72 and 105 to register his second century—he made 113 not out v. Warwickshire, while his skipper's 91 was his sixth big score of the season. Holmes has made 101 against Lancashire, 114 v. Worcester, 206 v. Derby, and 104 and 50 not out v. Lancashire in their second game. His 91 at headquarters may go a long way to Test recognition at the Oval next Saturday.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were:—Middlesex beat Surrey on the first innings at the Oval. Surrey: 393 (Fishlock 72). 347 for 6 (Fishlock 105, E. K. T. Holmes 91). Middlesex: 536 (Hendren 195, J. H. Human 144).

Notts beat Kent on the first innings at Canterbury. Kent: 333 and 226 for 7. Notts: 433.

Glamorgan beat Sussex by 3 wickets at Hastings. Sussex: 289 and 259. Glamorgan: 384 (Smart 151 not out) and 160 for 7.

Yorkshire beat Leicestershire by 10 wickets at Leicester. Leicestershire: 274 and 130. Yorkshire: 393 (Sutcliffe 212) and 156 for 0.

Lancashire beat Somerset on the first innings at Weston-super-Mare. Lancashire: 422 (Iddon 112, Tyldesley 85) and 70 for 6. Somerset: 216 and 307 (N. S. Mitchell-Innes 139).

Walter Hagen, captain of America's Ryder Cup team, is the grand old man of golf. He was open champion of America, before Babe Ruth ever hit a home run—two years before Bobby Jones played in his first national tournament—five years before Dempsey arrived at Toledo six years before Bill Tilden won his first big start—yet the "Hague" is still leading the stars of the Cup team, representing the pick of American home-bred golfers.

Three Whitcombes In British Team

ERNEST AND REGINALD COMPLETE THE SIDE

London, Yesterday. The brothers Ernest and Reginald Whitcombe have been selected to fill the two remaining vacancies in the British Ryder Cup golf team to meet the American team at Ridgewood, New Jersey, on September 28 and 29.

The British team is conspicuous for the fact that the three Whitcombe brothers will be playing together, which probably sets a precedent in the annals of golf.

Ernest and Reginald Whitcombe tied for the Irish Open Championship a fortnight ago, Ernest winning the play-off. The following are the respective teams:

Great Britain:—Charles Whitcombe (captain), Percy Alliss, Richard Burton, John Bussan, William Cox, Edward Jarman, Alfred Padgham, Alfred Perry, Reginald Whitcombe, Ernest Whitcombe.

United States:—Walter Hagen, (captain), Paul Runyan, Sam Parks, Olin Dutra, K. Y. Laffoon, Johnny Rovalto, Henry Picard, Horton Smith, Gene Sarazen, and Craig Wood.—Reuter.

POISON AS SAVER OF LIFE

The Deadly Curare Of Guiana

May Yet Become Specific For Tetanus

(By OSCAR E. MILLARD)

A GROUP of English scientists is patiently striving to change a mortal poison into a medicinal drug which may have the owner of curing the "incurable."

An experiment has been performed in the laboratories of the National Institute for Medical Research which represents the latest and one of the most important steps yet made in this direction.

You know that the best method of saving a struggling man from drowning is to knock him on the head, and apply artificial respiration when he is safe on shore.

On much the same principle the deadly paralysing effect of the most dangerous of all plant poisons is being pressed into the service of humanity.

This poison is curare, and the experiment consisted in extracting from it pure crystals of "curarine." Hitherto, the few medicinal men who knew how to handle curare were obliged to use the poison itself. But now that it has been possible to extract pure crystals it is hoped that the way may be open for its more extensive use in medicine.

No Known Antidote

When Raleigh discovered the "large, rich and beautiful Empire of Guiana" 340 years ago, what impressed him even more than the richness of the country was the 100 per cent. mortality rate among his men struck by arrows or by darts from the natives' blowpipes.

He found that this was due to curare or urali in which the arrowheads were dipped. It produced a strange paralysing effect.

Though curare has since travelled from the blow-pipe to the doctor's syringe, no antidote has ever been found.

Difficulties of Research

Early last year an authority on the medicinal use of curare said to me:

"Quite apart from our uncertainty as to the precise manner in which curare acts upon the nervous system, our work has been hampered by the difficulty in obtaining the drug in sufficient quantities, and even more so by the total absence of uniformity in the specimens we manage to procure."

Since then a considerable advance has been made in manipulation of the drug, but one of the great obstacles still remains—the difficulty of obtaining supplies.

The curare with which the latest experiment was made had to be unearthed from the Department of Ceramics in the British Museum.

The price of curare in London, when it is obtainable, is in the neighbourhood of £5 per ounce. This may sound expensive. Actually, considering the difficulty in procuring it from the natives and the value they place on it themselves, this is quite cheap.

Witch Doctors' Secret

Curare still remains the principal article of barter in British Guiana. As the natives' existence depends almost entirely on it, the concoction of the poison is always in the hands of the local witch doctor.

It was not until the first half of last century that travellers pierced the witch doctor's secret. Sir Robert Schomburgk saw the poison being prepared in the jungle by mixing a number of plants and evaporating their juice over a fire.

He also described the different receptacles in which the natives put the poison: in gourds, earthenware pots and tubes of bamboo.

The strength varies considerably according to the type of container, and this fact has increased the difficulties of using it medicinally, for extremely accurate dosage is necessary. As little as 48 milligrams has been administered over a period of 20 days in a case of tetanus recently described.

Curare is always given hypodermically, for it is effective only when injected direct into the blood-stream. The witch doctors know this long before European scientists discovered it, and they still trade on it to mystify their people by casually sipping the deadly brew in the course of preparation.

Growing Curare At Kew

It was in desperate cases of tetanus that European doctors made their first attempts to use curare as a drug. Results were only partially successful. Although they succeeded in preventing mortal convulsions, it was only at the price of producing total paralysis.

Little more was done until a few years ago when, after numerous successful experiments on frogs, mice and rats, an English scientist treated a number of patients suffering from nervous diseases in which marked rigidity of the muscles is a prominent feature. Although no permanent cures were effected, the improvement in some cases was such as to enable curare to take its place among standard treatments.

Government co-operation was obtained, and a number of expeditions sent out into the wilds of British Guiana to collect the various plants used in the concoction of the poison.

The difficulty of this task is tremendous, but quantities of plants and seed have been shipped to England for examination by Professor Sandwith, at Kew Gardens, where it is hoped to be able to germinate the seed.

Perfecting Technique

Meanwhile renewed efforts are being made to use the crystals of curarine in the treatment of tetanus.

With their greater knowledge of man's nervous system and a deeper insight into the action of curarine, modern scientists have no longer to confine their intervention to a hopeless choice between total paralysis or convulsions.

They have perfected the technique of the administration of curare to the point where they can now produce partial paralysis of the muscles—the convulsion of which is the cause of death in tetanus—and, having thus obtained control of the muscles, counteract the fatal effects of this paralysis on the respiratory organs by means of a special device for carrying out artificial respiration.

Snakes in Literature.

An interesting article appeared in a recent issue of "The Naturalist," a North of England journal, entitled "Snakes in English Literature" by Lt. Colonel R. H. Elliot, author of the interesting book, "The Myth of the Mystic East." Colonel Elliot knows much about snakes and about other things too and some of his points are worth passing on.

He refers to the ignorance of boys and girls, and teachers too, as to the nature of a snake's tongue. "Arry, look, there's 'is sting'; ere, Mary, look at 'is sting'." Where is the origin of this myth to be found—and, for that matter, the origin of so many erroneous stories about snakes? Col. Elliot quotes many instances in English literature. The book of books is a serious offender in this respect.

TENDERS INVITED

"The serpent is more subtle than any beast of the field which the Lord God hath made." He may have been subtle before the Fall; but now he is "a stupid creature with a low form of brain devoted to sight, smell and reflex actions, but very poorly equipped, owing to secrecy of fore brain, for the higher functions, such as reasoning power, planning and cunning."

"In one respect, however, the Bible narrative shows some knowledge of biology, for the serpent that talked with Eve was obviously a legged animal. Had it been already a 'creeper' the curse upon thy belly shall thou go' would have meant nothing." Pythons have rudiments of hind limbs, a clear indication that snakes have been derived from legged reptiles.

Clean Feeders

"Dust shalt thou eat." "Dust shall be the serpent's meat." "They shall eat the dust like a serpent." But, as a matter of fact, snakes are very clean feeders; they rarely eat carrion, but eat their food fresh, swallowing it whole.

In the New Testament the serpent as a symbol of evil and of the evil one was still used, for the simile would be understood easily by the devout Jews. "Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the dangers of hell?"

To return to the "sting" of a snake: Colonel Elliot points out that the Lesser Oxford Dictionary in its definition of a "sting" includes the following: "The wound inflicted by the aculeus of an insect, the telson of a scorpion, the fang of an adder, etc." But the bite of a snake cannot be compared with the sting of a bee. When a viper bites, the fangs, the two enlarged teeth on either side of the upper jaw, are buried in the flesh of the prey and venom is forced by muscular contraction from the venom sac (a modified salivary gland) along a duct and down the hollow fang into the wound. The forked tongue has nothing to do with biting or "stinging" and is in fact a highly sensitive organ for taste or smell.

As Others See Us

It may be said that as a rule the only way to escape criticism is to be completely dull and absolutely unimportant; the price that has to be paid for having any influence on current events, which always must mean turning an advantage in the direction of one man rather than another, is that the other man will have something uncomplimentary to say. Judged by that criterion one would think that Hong Kong must be growing more important, for our critics are more numerous and more candid than ever. We ourselves are inclined to be doubtful of the future and humble about the present; but it may well be that the onlooker sees the most of the game, as usual. In any case the opportunities that the future may have to offer will only be ours if we know how to seize them, and even Rome recognised that "fusa est ab hoste doceri".

So long as we have Shanghai as a near neighbour there will be no need to pray that some god would "the gift give us to see ourselves as others see us," for we only have to read the Shanghai papers. Shanghai has much the same position for the Yangtze Valley that we have for the Southern Provinces, so we may naturally look to it to see how things should be managed with a complete absence of "myopic aloofness." Its position at the entrance of one of the most wonderful waterways of the world; its inclusion within the tariff wall; its cosmopolitan population; all these things combined with immense wealth should make it at least the financial, if not the cultural, mentor of East and West in the difficult operation of establishing contact between the two civilisations. We should expect to find a microcosm of the civilised world, able at any rate to get its own way in municipal affairs, and give effective advice about trade and finance.

The actual situation is that by "myopic" neglect of the growing city, it has got entirely out of hand, and such belated attempts at catching up with the arrears of development as Mr. Justice Feetham's Report are merely ignored. Why should it be supposed that the much smaller community of Hong Kong is to blame for failing to have a more effective influence? Recently the Japanese representative had some of the officials of Greater Shanghai removed because they were not personae gratae; how is it that the Shanghai Municipality would be unable to emulate the Japanese, if they wished to do so? It was, as a matter of fact, in Shanghai that the unfortunate disorders occurred which, skillfully used by clever Soviet Agents, killed the old goodwill which had been built up in the South by long years of friendly dealings.

Then there is finance, which is surely well within the ambit of a Shanghai man's interest and competence. Whether the advice of the European bankers has been given and rejected, or given and accepted, or not asked for, makes little difference. Confidence in the Shanghai dollar is at a very low ebb; and a little bit of foresight combined with the confidence which the Nanking Government might have been expected to have in the advice of trained bankers ought to have been able to make the Far East independent of the ramp of a few dozen political profiteers on the other side of the Pacific. The point is that Shanghai is a more important centre for us than Washington or New York, and it is largely because Shanghai has been lacking in the wider outlook that our much smaller community has been commercially paralysed.

The "tu quoque" argument leads nowhere. The point is that our critics in Shanghai and Manila and elsewhere in the Far East are in the same boat, and we must prosper or fail together. Hong Kong stands or falls by its status as a British Colony, and the outpost of "Britishness" in the Orient. If our critics look to us to inaugurate a policy based on a wide tolerance and the utmost possible release of trade from artificial shackles, let us not resent the criticism, but accept the responsibility. Let us first of all make our purpose clear by our attitude and actions, and then use our influence in advancing our point of view. We have a long road to travel. It will be better to travel together. But in any case there is nothing to be gained by standing still.

HUMOUR IN PUBLIC LIFE

NO subject could have been more topical than that chosen by Mr. Collinson for his talk at the Rotary Lunch last Tuesday. Anyone who is old enough to remember the give and take of pre-war politics, whether domestic or foreign, cannot but feel that something very valuable has dropped out of public life in the abandonment of the very effective weapons of the humorous aside and the telling cartoon. With one Dictator telling his Blackshirts that five continents will bow before them, and another prophesying that the whole world will tremble before him, never were there such opportunities for the world to have a good sobering laugh and feel all the better for it. Humour is the outcome of a sense of proportion suddenly applied to a scene where the proportions have got wrong, which in a flash reveals the distortion. We are all so serious nowadays, and so careful not to give offence, that there is a whole chorus of frogs swelling themselves out to the proportion of Aesop's ox. One would not mind the approach of the inevitable burst if it were not that so many of us would be involved in the consequences.

APPRECIATION OF A JOKE

A WISE man once said that the best guarantee of a happy marriage was that the bride and bridegroom should have the same sort of humour—not, of course, because they would spend their hours of leisure in amusing each other, but because nothing like seeing the same joke at the same time can be so complete a proof of having the same outlook on life, the same sense of value and proportion. If Englishmen no longer are able to see the same humorous side of life, it is a sign that the class struggle has indeed eaten deeply into the national life. Take, for instance: Disraeli rising to reply to Gladstone after a speech of furious denunciation which had overstated the importance of the occasion. "As the Right Honourable gentleman on the other side of the table completed his peroration, I could not but be thankful to Providence—and the Board of Works—for having placed between

The Lizard

Swiftly it sped, with lithe reptilian grace:
I saw its flashing back but not its face.
And then it paused, all metal-sheathed and gowned
In changeable blue, an amethyst on the ground.
But as I watched, the quivering tree-tops swayed,
The lizard lay, uncoloured, in the shade.
I breathed and moved, the creature turned its head,
Showed beady eyes, pale skinny throat—and fled.

BRITAIN'S COMING AIR ARMADA

FORETASTE SHOWN AT ROYAL REVIEW

(By William Courtenay)

Recent decisions of policy gave the Jubilee Review of the Royal Air Force a significance that would have been lacking a year ago. For the great assembly the King witnessed was but the nucleus of what, by the time the expansion scheme is completed, will give Britain an air service with our parallel among the nations of the world.

At the Armistice in November, 1918, the newly constituted Royal Air Force possessed some 3,000 aircraft and 30,000 pilots.

The years of retrenchment which followed reduced these numbers to about 2,700 officers and 1,000 aircraft. The War laid down the beginnings of air strategy and suggested air tactics, but it was not until afterwards that the main divisions and duties of various kinds of aircraft were well defined and that pilots began to specialise for them.

War Competition
The chief machines in service at the Armistice were single-seater fighters, such as the Sopwith Camel and the SE 5A; two-seater fighters or reconnaissance machines such as the Bristol Fighter; and bombers such as the first of the twin-engined Handley Page machines and the DH 9A.

Even the fastest fighters then could not exceed 120 to 130 m.p.h.

FIVE YEARS AGO

(Extracts from the Sunday Herald of August 10, 1930.)

At the Victoria Recreation Club swimming gala the main interest was centred on "Jimmie" Johnston's attempts to lower the V.R.C. bath record of 56 seconds for the 100 yards, which was set up by Takahishi, the Japanese Olympic swimmer, during his visit to Hong Kong a few years ago. After several attempts, "Jimmie" finished up with a best effort of 61.2/5 seconds.

By defeating the Civil Service Cricket Club by 30 shots in the First Division of the Lawn Bowls League the Craigengower Cricket Club (holders) have temporarily placed themselves at the head of affairs with an advantage of two points over their Happy Valley rivals. A great deal hinges on the return match between the two sides.

A successful open air concert in aid of the building fund for their new pavilion at Sookpoo was held by the Indian Recreation Club.

There was a large attendance at the Sir James Oxberry Lodge, R.A.O.B., the occasion being an official visit of the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, for the purpose of raising Brother P. Cox to the second degree. Brother C. W. H. Wilson conducted the ceremony, the candidate being sponsored by Brother A. E. Manwaring, C.P., P.G.Ch.

and generally a speed of 100 m.p.h. was regarded as fairly satisfactory.

The competition of the "dog fights" on the Western Front between German formations and our own led to a rivalry in the aircraft works of both countries which gave our pilots better and faster fighters.

Without these supremacy could not be secured in the air, nor could the photographic, long-range reconnaissance, or long-distance bombing machines, venture safely far afield.

This lesson of the offensive power of speed has not been lost.

Speed And Power
To-day the fastest single-seater fighters in the R.A.F. have reached speeds up to 250 m.p.h. Their engines are about three times as powerful in terms of horse-power as those of the later war years, fuel consumption figures are vastly better, and weight of the engines per horse power very much less.

These factors enable the modern fighter, like the Fury and the Gauntlet, such as the King saw at the Review, to climb to 20,000 to 30,000 feet and beyond in a few minutes.

If we had had a few of these in the War, and the enemy nothing of equivalent speed and power, we could have kept the German Air Force permanently in its hangars.

Bombers
Our bombers were only ready at the Armistice to reach Berlin non-stop from Allied territory.

MR. D. BURLINGHAM

This is the fifty-fourth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyas, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Donald Burlingham, Acting Inspector General of Police.

Born at Norwich, Norfolk, on January 30, 1892, Mr. Donald Burlingham received his early education at Norwich School. Entering the examination for the Indian and Colonial Police Services, he was appointed to Hong Kong as a probationer in 1911, arriving in the Colony in January 1912. The Revolution having broken out, Mr. Burlingham was not sent to Canton, as is usually the case, to learn Cantonese; but about a year later, after an attack, attended by loss of life, had been made on the Police Station at Chung Cheung Chau, it was thought advisable to appoint an Assistant Superintendent of Police to take charge of the Indian Police in the whole of the New Territories and Mr. Burlingham was sent to India, to learn Punjabi and Urdu, with a view to this appointment.

At Last Science Reveals What We Talk About

Your Conversation is not all "Highbrow," as you may Think. It is more likely to be about "odd" folk and their antics, if what the Professor discovered is really true

Eighty per cent. of the conversion of folk of all kinds, creeds and classes has to do with other people; less than 10 per cent. with scandals, love affairs gone wrong, and gossip; about 2 per cent. with business; not quite 1 per cent. academy could enjoy their canters in comfort. Or Charles Lockhart, Texas State Treasurer, who, though having a normal torso, is only 4 feet 5 inches tall because of the extraordinary shortness of his legs.

As a rule, so Professor Hornberger found, sooner or later in every conversation someone says, "By the way, did you see the story in the papers about that fellow in —?" Or, "I saw the funniest thing to-day." And there follows one of these descriptions of so-called "odd" people—such as that reported not so long ago

For instance, in the professor's records for a certain week, including talks in all kinds of places, there cropped up a dozen times discussion of a certain Martin Laurillo who, according to nationally printed news reports and that reported not so long ago about Charles J. King, of Mission Tex., who got married and for a honeymoon took a 2,000-mile trip in an automobile hearse with a corpse (King was an undertaker, and had to make the trip, anyway). Or some such interesting pictures, "can tuck his backbone under his chin." There were even transcripts of conversations in clubs, living rooms and bar-rooms wherein it was evident that one of the talkers had taken from his pocket a newspaper picture of Mr. Laurillo in action, such as is reprinted on this page. And in these records were literally hours of comment—strange as it seems in this serious and troubled day—about how Mr. Laurillo got that way!

Surprisingly interesting in themselves are these things that people talk about—even to write about! Consider, if you will, Warner G. Wadlington, of Memphis, Tenn., who figured in several of Dr. Hornberger's records. The good-looking young man, some of his originality of mind perfectly expressed in his bright, interesting features, started a new profession—that of making statues out of ice, working, of course, in a room where the temperature was always kept at 18 degrees Fahrenheit. Or Fred Brewster, of Jasper, Ont., who got himself talked about—and is still talked about—because he tied a wicker chair to a saddle so that ladies who came to his riding

TAKE a look at yourself. Not at your face in the mirror, but at yourself as expressed in the talking—of which everybody does so much. Try to figure out just what you talk about most. Quite a feat of memory, isn't it? Well, science has at last got around to eavesdropping on conversations. And the discoveries are not only interesting, but surprising. And not at all what you'd think.

The particular scientist who has for the last two years been conducting these original researches is Dr. Ridgley S. Hornberger. A psychologist of years' standing, he became so interested in the conversation of persons that he gave up his post at the University of Southern California that he might learn at last exactly what we all really talk about. His method of approach was necessarily a quiet one. First, he listened himself, then he had members of his classes at Southern California listen and report to him. And then he armed himself with dictophones and, unobserved, he listened to conversations in all sorts of places, from society drawing room to waterfront, bar room, from dormitory rooms at the university to college barber shop, from Pullman car to Chamber of Commerce lounge.

Now, you'd naturally think, off-hand, that a man would talk most about his particular hobby. In fact, looking over casually your list of immediate friends, you'd think that you could almost spot them in type of conversation.

Sound as that seems, if you reasoned that way you'd be wrong. To-day Dr. Hornberger has thousands of verbatim records of conversations, secretly taken down, so far as the conversation-alists are concerned. Furthermore, he has analysed them all, and compiled lists of subjects touched upon in each one, and then cast up the totals. And here is what he found:

HE MUST NOT MRS. BOVRIL

Almost in Confidence

I WENT up this week to visit Chats At Teatime

Dr. Woo of St. Paul's Girls' College and she told me some interesting things about her school, where she had been principal for just on 20 years. Dr. Woo received the degree of M.B.A. in 1926 and the University of California conferred the Honorary Doctor's Degree upon her. Then her efforts won the support of the local Government, who gave her a valuable site, and so she was able to see the construction of the lovely new school building.

Her scheme was first to have a fine building and then the best possible staff. So well has she succeeded that the girls now have eight university graduates to teach them. Previously they worked mainly for the Advanced Chinese, but now English is studied to a matriculation standard.

Several of the students who have been graduated from the College have become doctors and embarked upon a professional career. The majority have become teachers and a big percentage have gone back to their home towns and countries to teach. Dr. Woo's aim has always been to spread education and elevate womanhood, for, as she so often tells her students, "no nation can rise above the level of her women."

Social Interests

Girls come to St. Paul's from all over China, from the United States and Canada, from Japan and the Straits Settlements. It is well worth coming, too, for apart from the school curriculum, the girls have a lovely big swimming pool, and, under the guidance of a swimming instructress, many of them have passed their life-saving tests. Their social interests are also developed in their different clubs. There are Girl Guides, of course, and a Wah Kwong Club (Student Branch of the Y.W.C.A.) which has done good work, while the Old Girl's Association actually supports a free school. The linguists have their English and Mandarin Clubs, so that little worthy of attention is left untouched by these keen young students.

We can only congratulate Dr. Woo on the success of her efforts, and leave our good wishes with St. Paul's Girls' College as they are about to begin their new year—a very important year too, for the school will celebrate its twenty-first birthday.

A Popular Rendezvous

The Hong Kong Hotel seems to be the inevitable meeting place of tourists. On Wednesday, when one or two bigger boats were in and the weather bad, the lounge and dining-hall were crowded. In fact groups of people had to leave disappointed, as not a vacant table was to be seen anywhere.

Local residents weren't missing either: among those who lunch fairly regularly at the hotel are Sir Henry and Lady Pollock, and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Raymond, all present on Wednesday. The local film world, too, seems to have chosen the hotel as their special meeting place, for Mr. Caplan of Fox Films, Mr. Morgenstein of United Artists, Mr. Hugo of the Oriental Theatre, and Mr. Bennett, who will soon start productions at the new Lee Garden Studio, were all there in addition.

Mrs. Taylor of Paul Rennet et Cie was saying what an enjoyable week-end she had spent in her Macao home among the hills. She took Mr. and Mrs. Blackmore and their little girl out with her, and though the weather was more than a little hot the party managed to enjoy quite a lot of tennis.

Before the afternoon was over Mrs. Simon came in looking radiant. She had just returned

The Ubiquitous Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Collisson, in his interesting and amusing address at Tuesday's Rotary dinner on "The Serious Uses of Humour," referred to the part humour had played during the Great War in diverting men's minds from the pain and horror and waste of it all.

Chatting to my neighbour at dinner on the subject of East Africa, more especially Tanganyika, which was known to both of us, I heard a story which might have served as an illustration to Mr. Collisson's subsequent talk.

My neighbour had been serving with one of the columns engaged in chasing that good sportsman and gentleman, von Lettow-Vorbeck. During these operations the Y.M.C.A., which had established a depot at Dar-es-Salaam for the supply of small luxuries and necessities to the troops, suddenly raised its prices.

Shortly afterwards a runner came in to the column with which my neighbour was serving, from von Lettow-Vorbeck himself, addressed to the "O. C. British Troops in German (underlined) East Africa," regretting that the Germans "can no longer patronise the Y.M.C.A., owing to the advance of their prices and the fact that the Germans are short of money."

It appeared that the Germans had been regularly sending native messengers, who easily slipped through our lines, to purchase razors or anything else they might need, at the Y.M.C.A. depot!

Colonel Ridgeway, the officer commanding the column, thereupon countered by issuing identity discs to all natives accompanying the British force.

Local Broadcasting

WITH their finances as at present constituted the local Broadcasting Committee is forced to provide a recorded programme for the major part of its broadcasts, and nobody can complain at that. But is it too much to ask that two gramophone turnplates might be used instead of one, so that offerings like Beethoven's D minor sonata, which, as played by Frederick Lamond, was broadcast recently, might not be interrupted half a dozen times during the broadcast while the records are turned over? The use of two turnplates and the new overlapping recording would make a welcome improvement in this respect.

Also I cannot resist remarking that the announcements here, as in England, continually remind me of the story of the horrid brute who attended a matinee at a London music hall.

During the interval he was approached by a haughty usherette (Golly, what a word!) who asked: "Would you like an ace?" "Thanks," replied the brute; "and I'd like the King, Queen and Jack as well."

Mr. L. E. Lammert

ONE of the best advertisements for the air of the Colony, which undoubtedly possesses that indefinable something that begets prolonged heartiness and health, is Mr. Lionel Eugene Lammert, whom you see on this page congratulating himself in caricature. Mr. Lammert, who in 1896 entered the business that his father, Mr. G. R. Lammert, had founded in 1858, was born in the Colony in 1880 and went home for the first time on leave after 20 years. He is now 13 years since he was in England, and he looks remarkably well on it. He was educated at the old St. Paul's College and later at the Victoria English School.

I can only say that I hope, when I am his age, that I can look and keep half as well as he manages to do.

Those Public Works!

I believe it was Barry Pain who recounted in one of his stories how some members of a certain London club, for a bet, dressed themselves as workmen and proceeded quite openly and boldly to "take up" a large portion of the Strand, which they carefully roped off against traffic, causing not a little disorganisation. After working at the spot for three days, during which time they made quite a likely looking hole in the beautiful red road, about five feet deep and about 12 feet by 10 feet in surface dimensions, they merely left it; and it was then discovered that the whole thing was a hoax. Another writer has remarked that there are something like twenty different authorities in London who have the right to pull the road up, including gas and water authorities, and many others.

I am reminded of these things by the extensive depredations now going on in the upper reaches of Ice House Street. It looks as though something is being done to the water pipes. But what I am concerned with is the undoubted fact that when works of this kind are done, the road is never, never really restored to its pristine beauty. Witness the unsightly looking patch all the way across Zetland Street at the present moment. I don't quite know why this should be allowed, but there it is. It is one of life's unexplained mysteries, like new potatoes and Mr. Lloyd George.

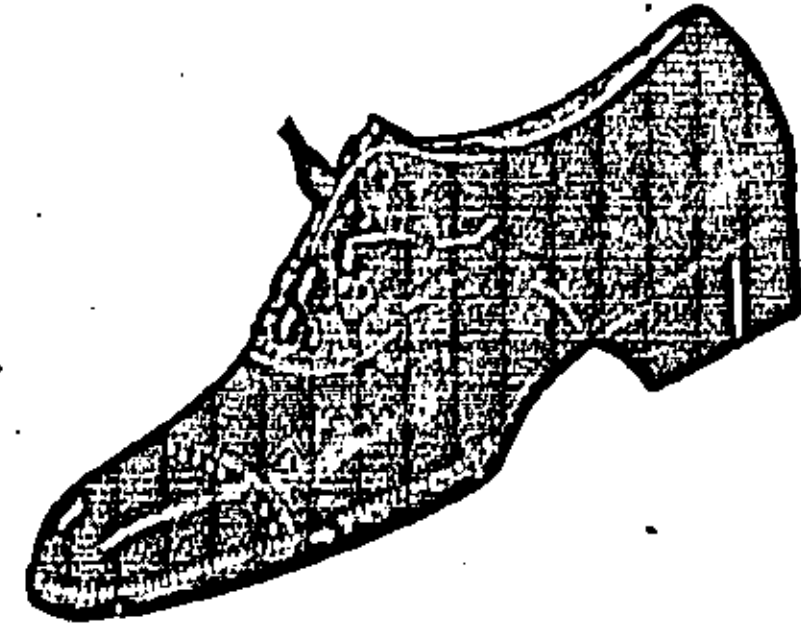

Redundant Culture

THE Shanghai Municipal Council is showing more than ordinary sound commonsense in deciding to abolish the Municipal Orchestra, which cost the ratepayers of Shanghai something like $300,000 a year to keep up. The provision of an expensive institution such as a municipal orchestra in these times of depression and widespread distress throughout the country was more an anachronism.

The decision to disband the orchestra has, of course, caused widespread tumult among the intelligentsia; but it is a fact that this expensive institution, beyond getting the active support of a few hundreds of the community at its weekly concerts, was an infliction in the shape of enhanced rates on the overwhelming majority of the population, to whom it conveyed absolutely nothing, culturally or any other way.

One regrets the disappearance of so excellent an institution on sentimental grounds, but the sturdy commonsense of the Municipal Council in making this decision, in spite of the active opposition of a vociferous minority, deserves great credit. Musical education of the masses is all right in its way, when it can be reasonably afforded; but not in these times, however eminent the vehicle.

Skinner's Recovery

J. SKINNER, the Hong Kong Football Club's former skipper, has recovered from the serious injury he received in the match against Kowloon towards the close of last season.

After having spent 11 weeks in hospital, he was recently afflicted with tonsillitis, which again resulted in his absence from the sports field. It is very doubtful whether he will be available for the Club during the coming season.

One of the latest framed photographs to adorn the walls of the Hong Kong Football Club, sharing a distinction with Interport soccer and rugby teams, is the group taken of the 'Ladies' Interport hockey teams, which met on the Club ground some months ago.

Omar As Footballer

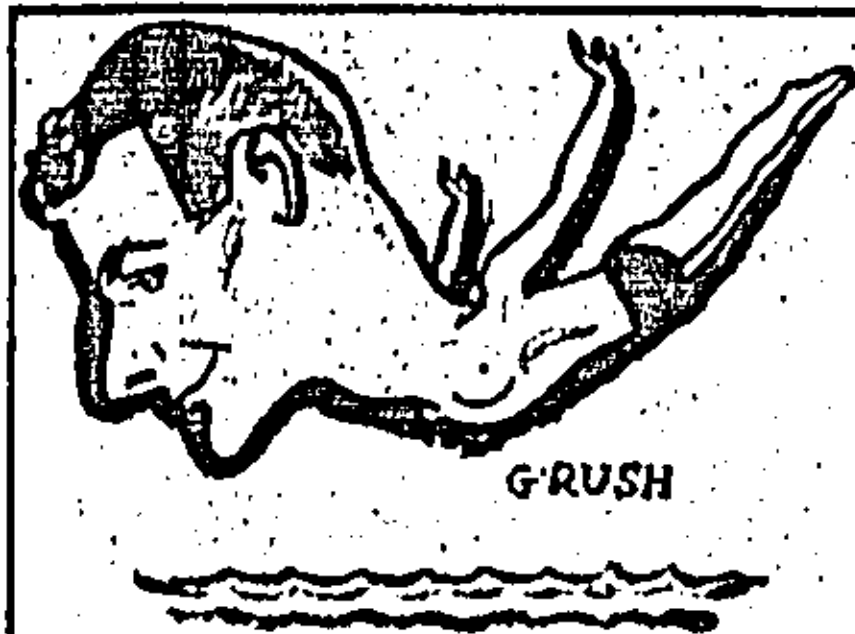

FEW know that U. M. Omar, the Craigengower bowler, played football for St. Joseph's in 1914, when they were the first civilian team to win the Junior League. He continued playing till 1920 when his team were runners-up in the Senior Shield. After that he took up cricket and has represented the Colony against Shanghai at both cricket and bowls.

Dr. Shaw of the Victoria Gaol plays billiards for the Prison Officers' Mess in the Steel Coulson Billiards and Snooker leagues.

C. S. M. Elvin of the East Lancashire Regiment, besides being one of the best cricketers in his battalion, plays billiards and is participating in the Army Amateur Snooker Championship.

Caught On Off Day

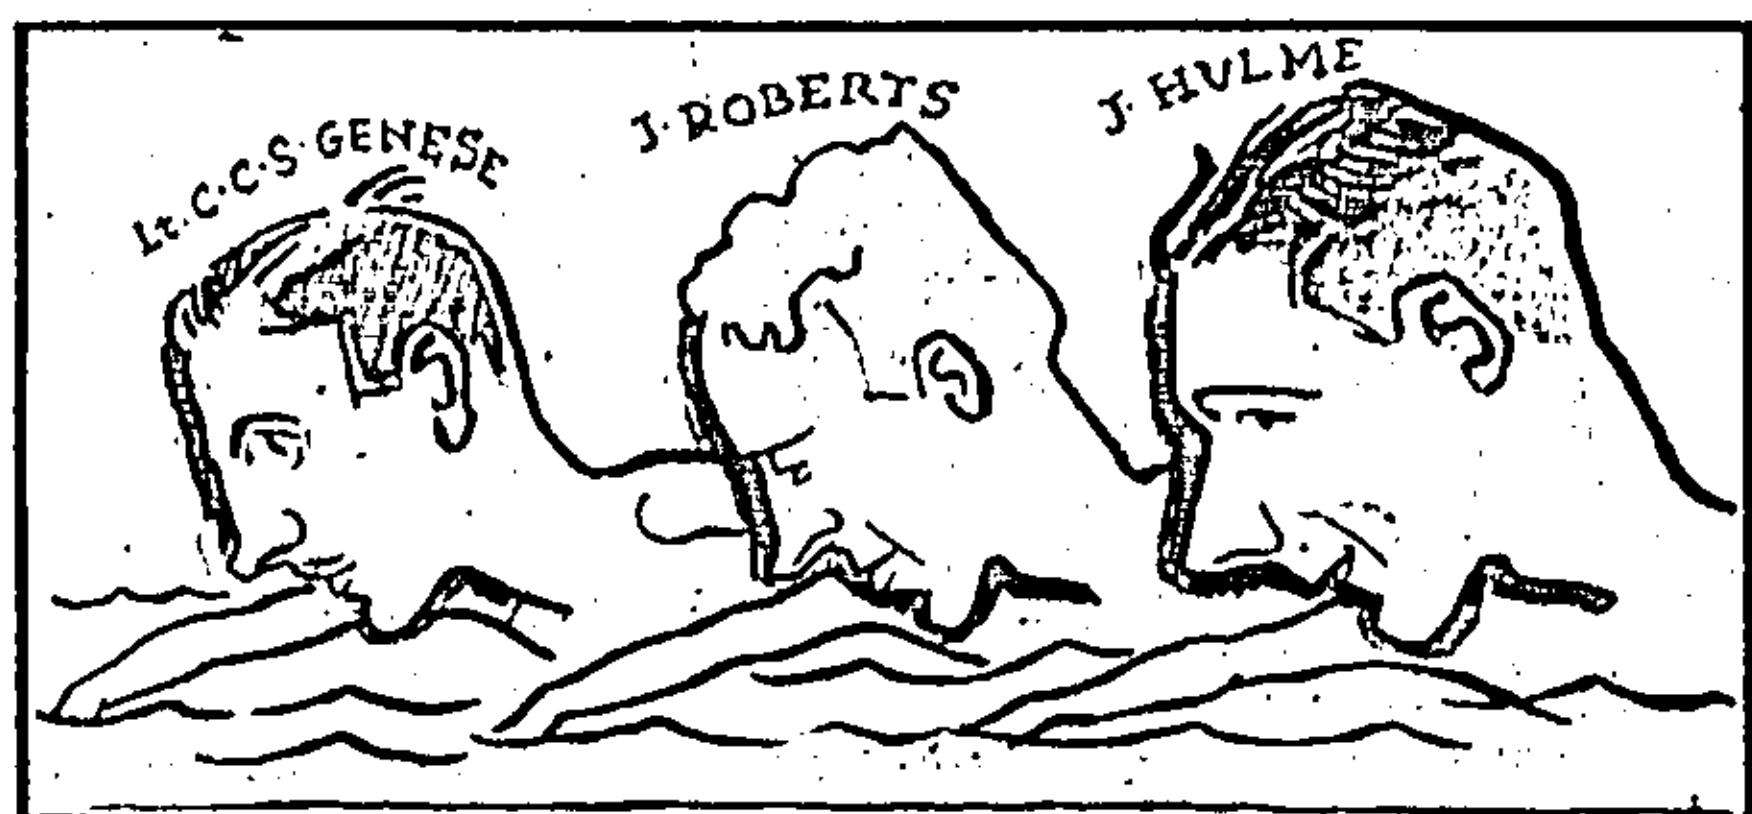

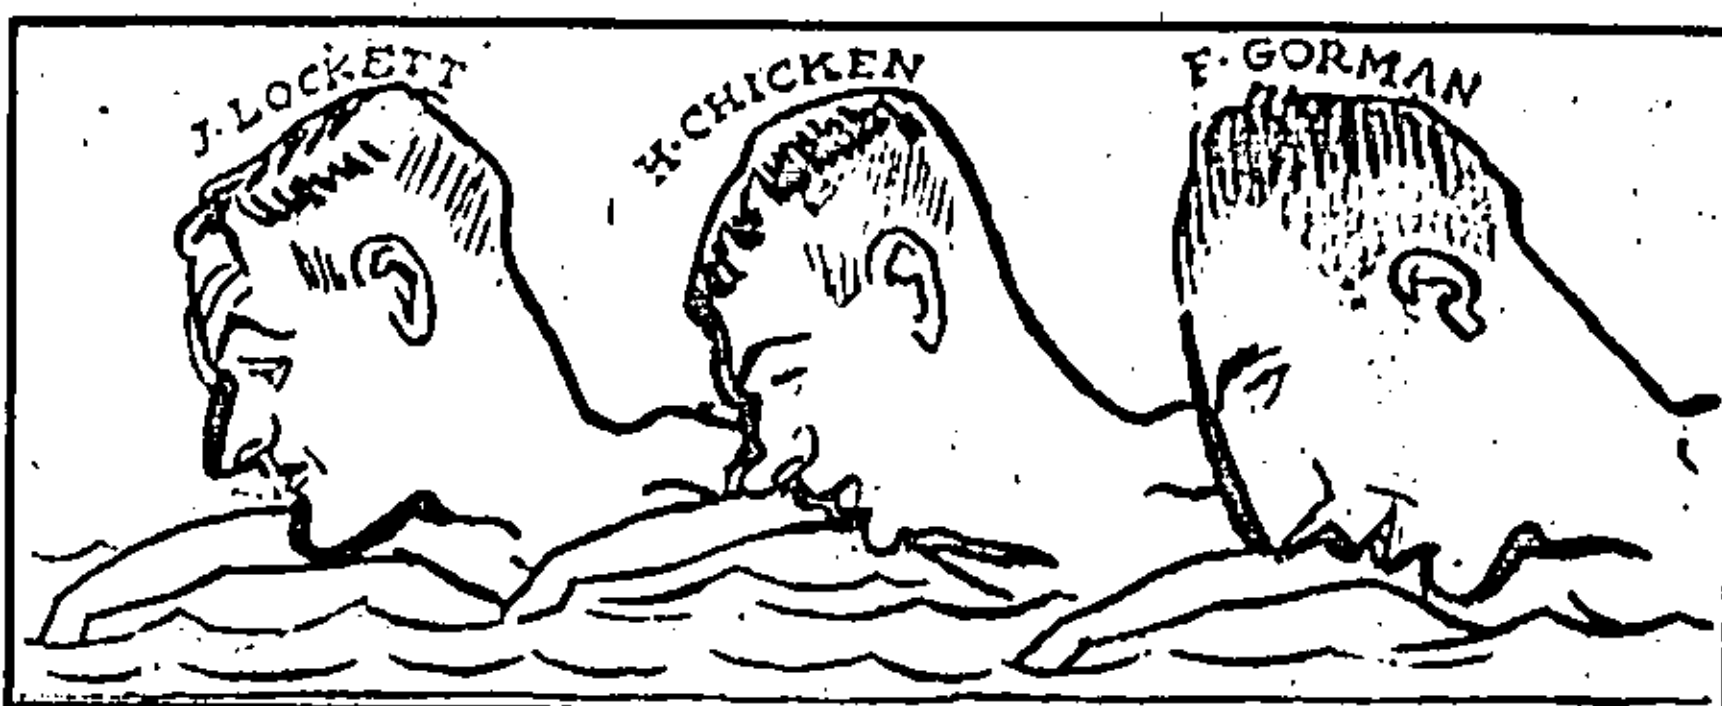

A FEW of the Selection Committee of the H.K.L.B.A. were watching the match between Craigengower "B" and the Kowloon B.G.C. a week yesterday, and it is understood that more than one player mentioned as a prospective Interporter lost a lot of face on the day's showing.

Pte. Rush, (Lincoln) winner of the Invitation Diving.

Naval Dockyard Bowlers

IT is considered by those who take an active interest in lawn bowls that the Naval Dockyard could form a team which would prove equal to any in the Colony. The greatest obstacle would be to secure a suitable green. W. Gill, J. Cavanagh, J. Hollidge, J. Budding, H. Beer, F. J. Jones, C. B. Hosking, and C. S. Summons would be a sound foundation for a team.

Swimming Visitors

AMONG the recent visitors to the Colony were Mr. E. A. Brodie, a former Shanghai Interport swimmer, who came down from Canton for a short stay during the August Bank holiday, and Mr. and Mrs. B. Rasmussen.

Mr. Brodie was formerly the 100 and 220 Yards Free Style champion of Shanghai, and represented that port against the Colony in several swimming Interports.

He also took a prominent part in the development of the Singapore Swimming Club when he was captain there a few years ago. While in that capacity he strongly advocated the construction of their magnificent swimming pool, which is the largest in the Far East.

He is now a Committee Member of the Shameen Swimming Club, and took part in his first water-polo game for several years when the Shameen Club beat H.M.S. Moth by 2 goals to nil recently.

United Hockey Loss

THE United Hockey Club will not be in a very strong position next season as they are losing several of their players, among whom is K. Kong in October, and will probably Naidu, their right full-back, who left for India last Monday.

R. C. Reed, of that well-known family of all-round sportsmen, is another United Hockey player who is leaving the team. He will play for another Club, but the name has not yet been divulged.

Dunlop In Scotland

A SHANGHAI bowler who has been familiar with Hong Kong players in Interport encounters, G. Dunlop, is now playing skip for one of the Ayrshire clubs. In his day he was regarded as one of Shanghai's greatest leads, and was singles champion on more than one occasion.

Naval Aquatic Sprinter

LIEUT. E. A. Woodward, formerly of H. M. Submarine Regulus, of the Mediterranean Fleet, but now of the China Station, is one of the Navy's finest swimmers, and has represented the Service in several representative contests at Home.

Credited with having done the 100 Yards Free Style in under 60 seconds at Malta, he is a very powerful swimmer, although his style is unorthodox.

Swimming with his head and shoulders well submerged, he has recently been seen tearing away at a great pace over the half-mile in the Y.M.C.A. pool. Unfortunately he has not had the opportunity to train for several months, but is fast making up for lost time. He is expected to leave the China Station for Home early next month.

Harrison Coming Down

NAT Harrison, of the Junior Golf Club, Shanghai, and a well-known Interporter, will be in Hong Kong in October, and will probably play lead for Shanghai.

W. Russell, a former Colony singles champion and popular Kowloon B.G.C. skip, is expected to return to the Colony in November.

R. M. Keown, who played for Tai-koo until recently, is being missed in bowling circles for, in addition to being a fine bowler, he is an even greater singer and his songs at Interport dinners, etc., were always fully appreciated. It is hoped that he will make a reappearance to brighten this year's Interport repast.

A Valuable Asset

DONALD Munro, the Talkoo skip, would help that Club considerably if he decided to take up the game again.

J. Cavanagh, the Craigengower "B" skip, although he was playing on his own green against the K.B.G.C. a week ago yesterday, did not master the green difficulties any more than the visitors, A. A. Razack, who generally plays for the "A" team, was easily the best bowler of the eight in question.

W. Spence, a sea-going member of the Kowloon B.G.C., would be a valuable asset to the team if he had the necessary time at his disposal. When he was on Home leave last year he played remarkably well for a Renfrewshire Club.

The Kowloon C.C., who are now struggling desperately hard to avoid being wooden-spoonists in the bowls league, once found themselves in the junior ranks, but returned to the senior division and won the league championship in 1931.

J. Calman, the Kowloon Dock R.C. bowler, who is at present on Home leave, will be returning to the Colony shortly.

Rasmussen Memories

B. RASMUSSEN will be best recalled as a water-polo player for the former Kowloon Swimming Club. He also took a prominent part in the early formation of the European Y.M.C.A. swimming section soon after their bath was constructed.

Rasmussen was recently appointed head of the Shameen Swimming Club Sports Committee, and was entrusted with drawing up a programme for a gala which is to take place in the very near future.

Annual Contest!

HE told a Y.M.C.A. Swimming Committee member last Saturday that there was every possibility of the European Y.M.C.A.—Shameen Swimming Club aquatic contests being revived. He said that he had already placed the matter before his Committee, who are seriously considering the matter.

In the eventuality of the contest taking place, the European Y.M.C.A. will probably send a mixed team to Canton, the return contest taking place in the "Y" both later on in the season, as the latter's pool is heated during the autumn months.

Shameen Rowing Club

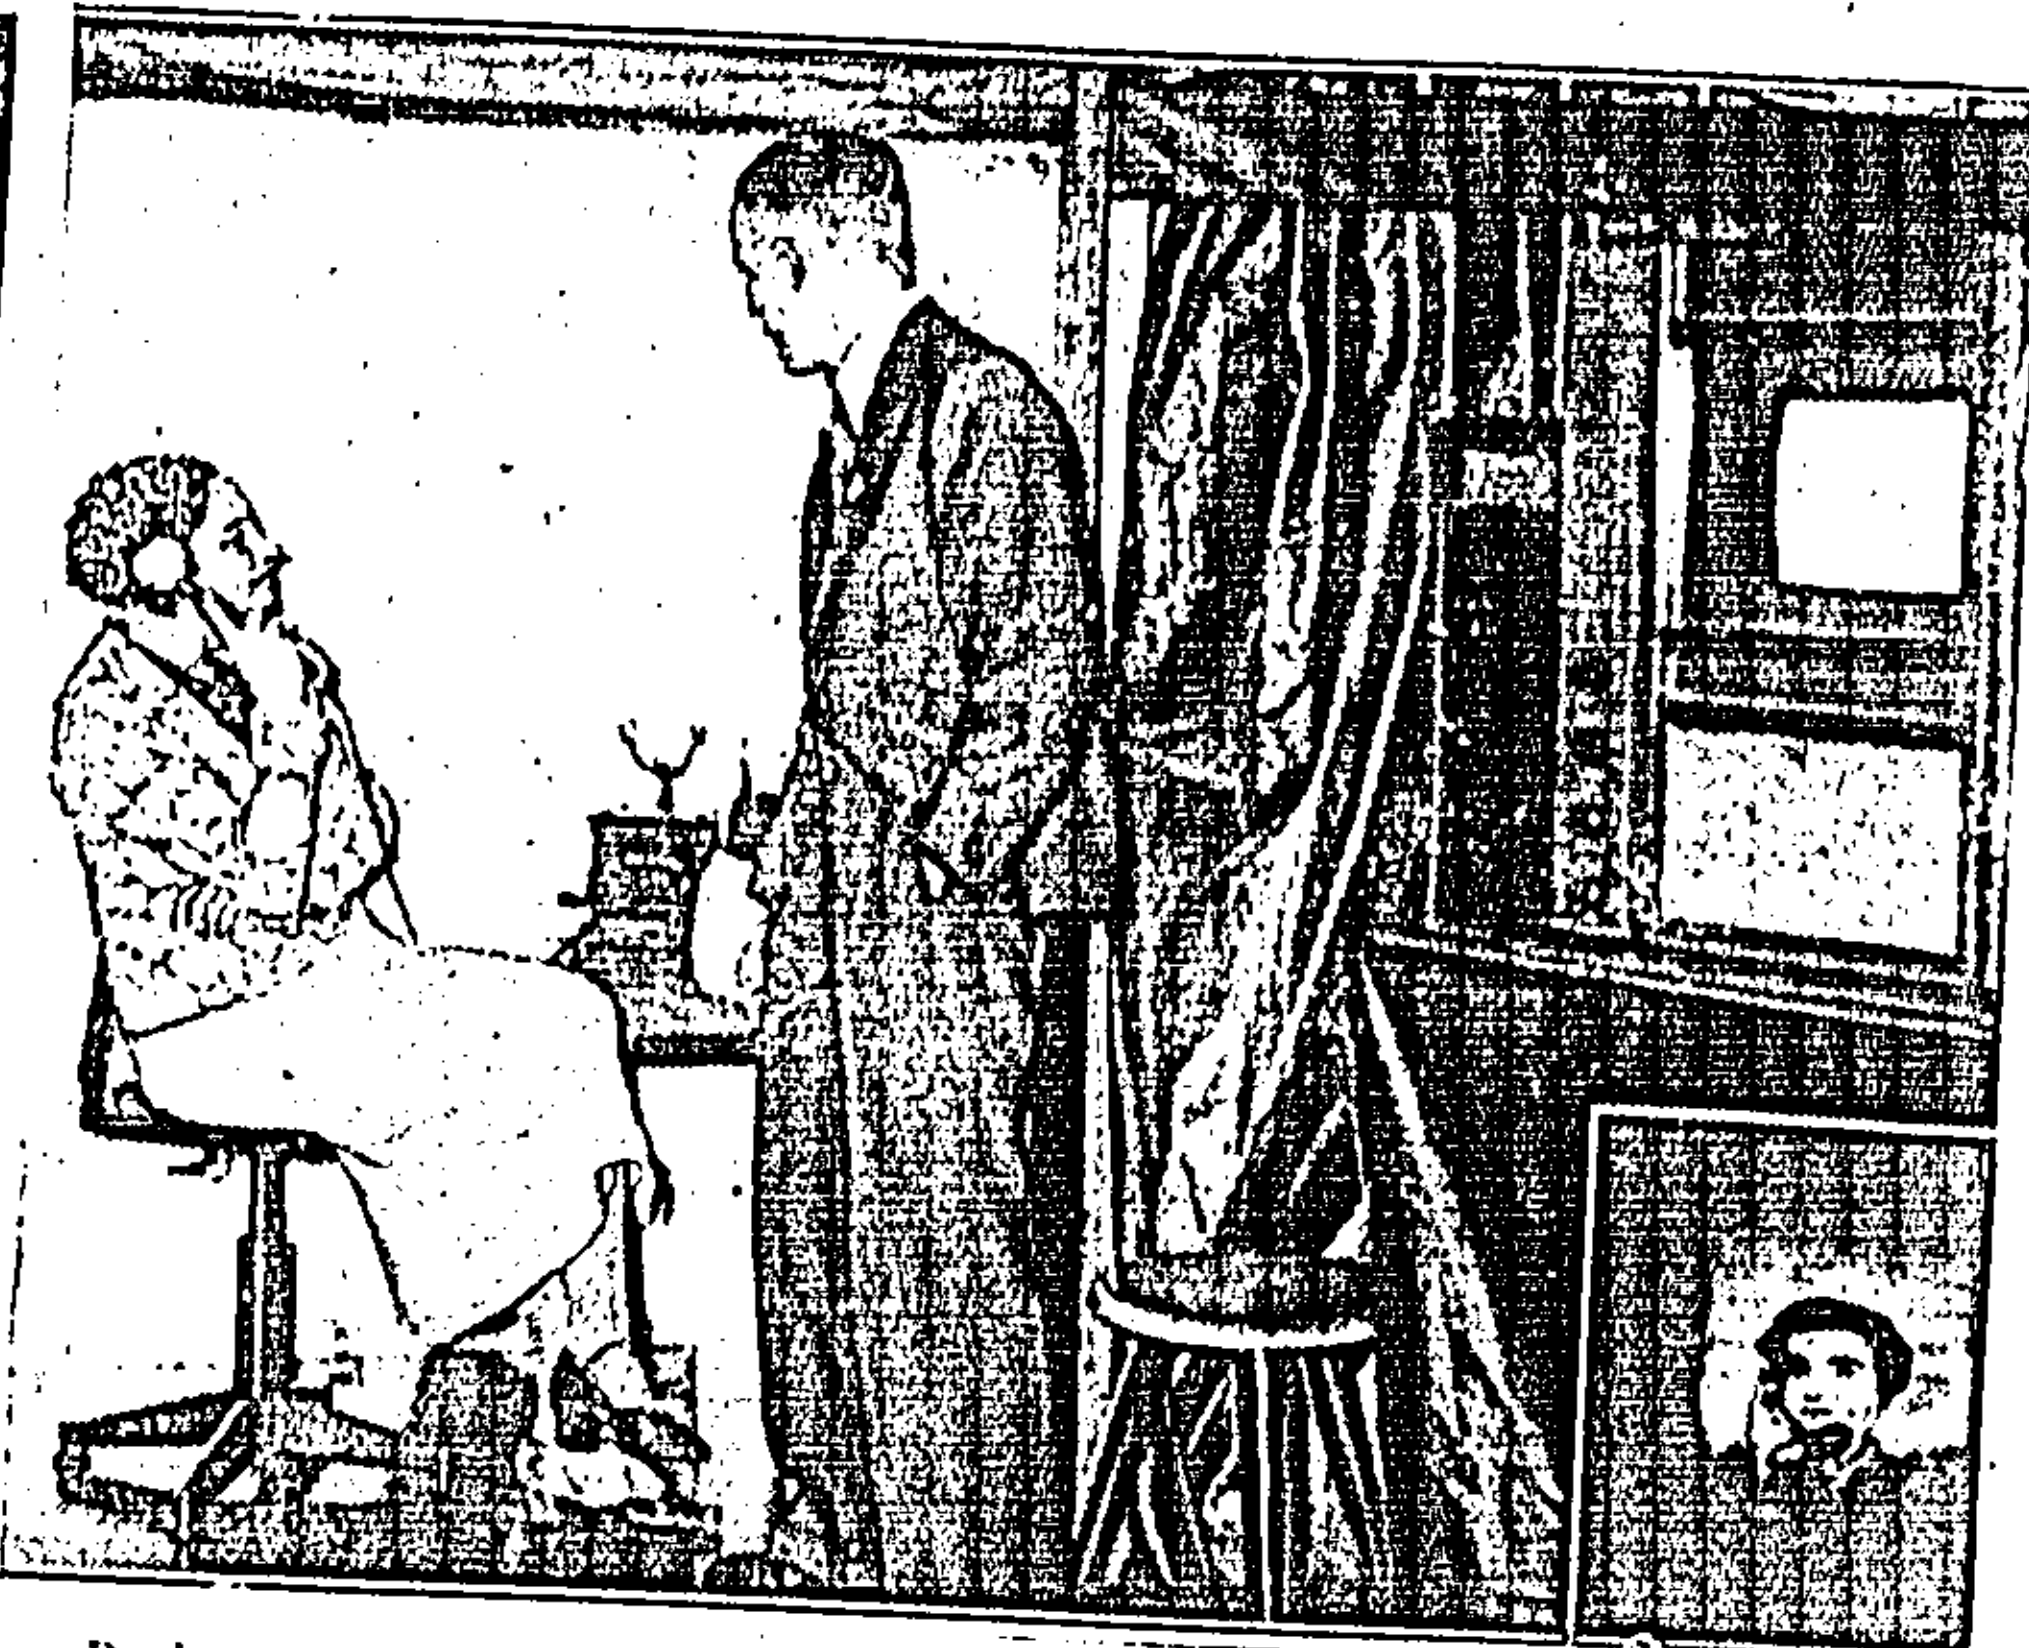

THE Shameen Rowing Club has once again revived interest and, although there are very few rowing members, the Club has taken a new lease on life and a determined move to produce a team of worthy oarsmen has already been begun.

Rasmussen, who is a very keen and experienced oarsman, has taken the budding enthusiasts in hand, and hopes, by the end of the present season, to be able to produce a first-class crew.

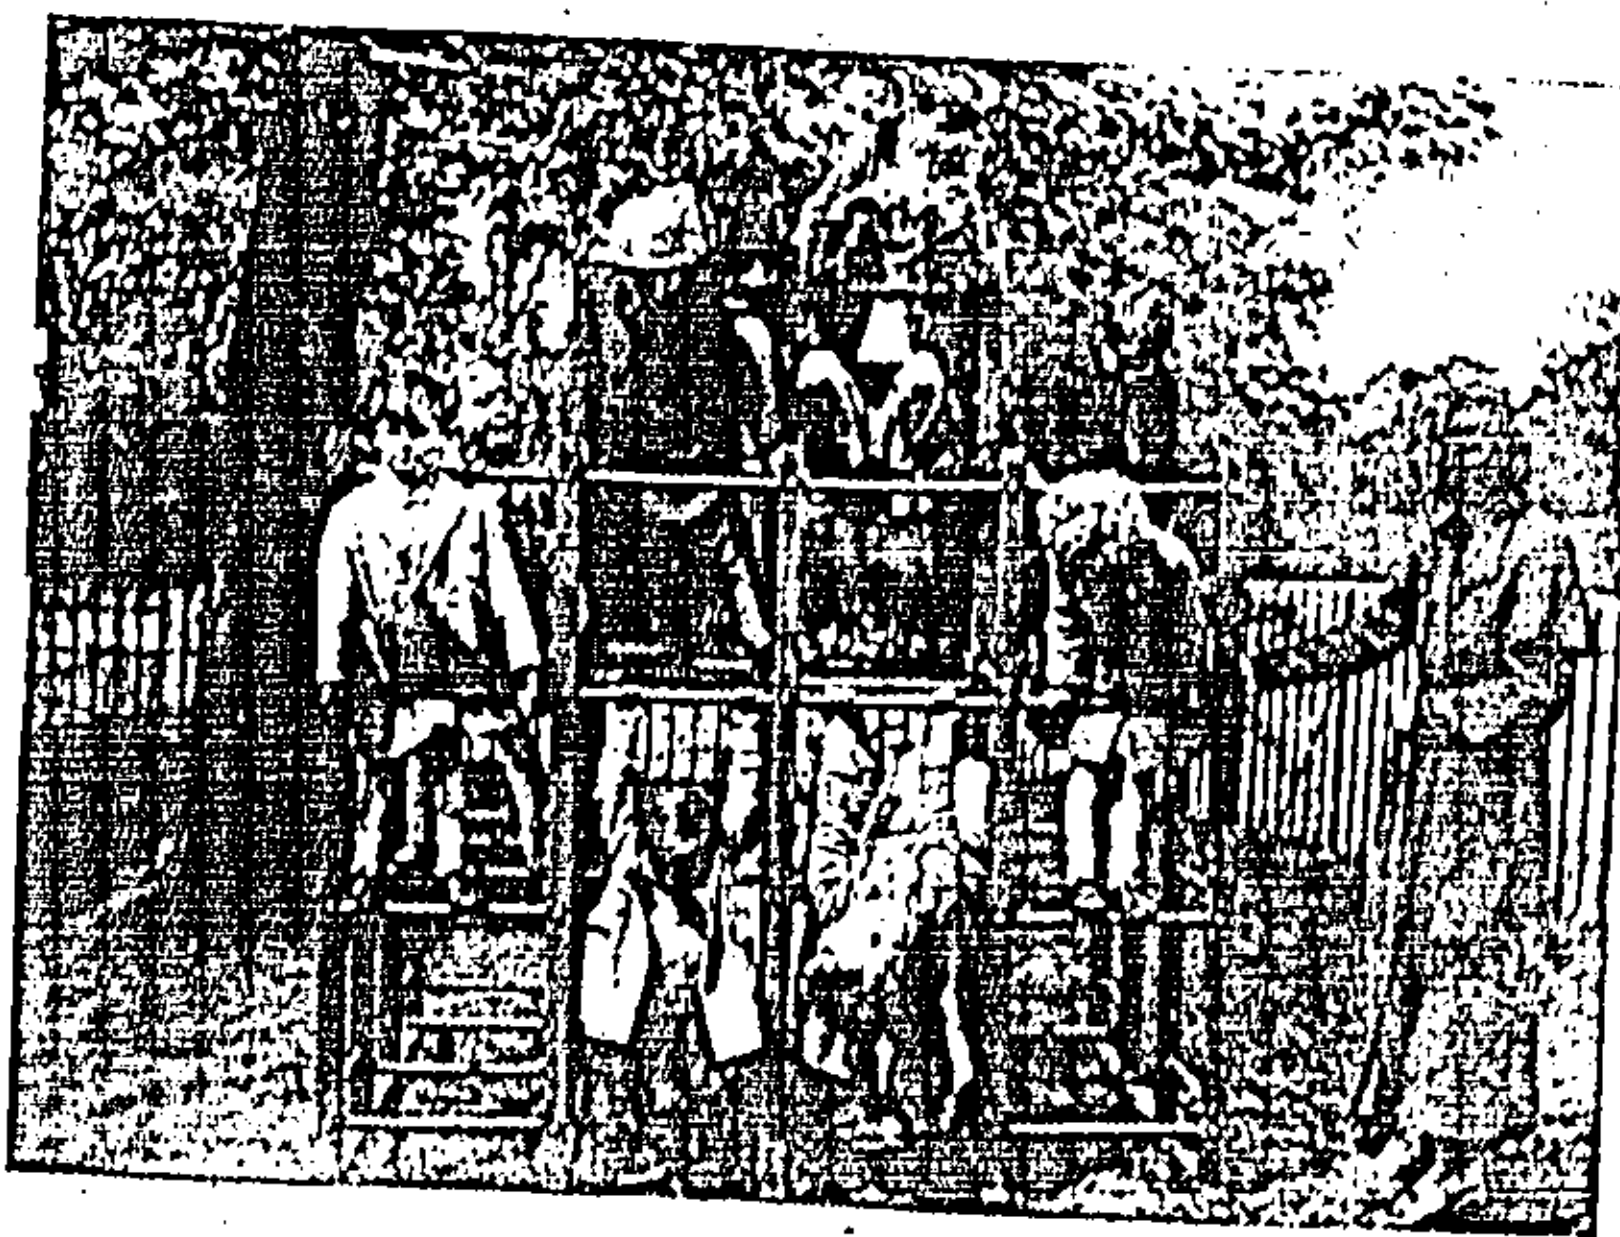

When he recently returned from Home leave, Rasmussen found that the pontoon had been destroyed in a gale and that no effort had been made to repair it. Now a new pontoon has been built.

FORTUNE-TELLER
FINED $500*Lizard, Stork And Tortoise Against
Dragon*INTERESTING CASE IN KOWLOON COURT

Charged with taking part in the management of an unregistered temple at No. 114, Nam Chang Street, Shumshuipo, and with professing to tell fortunes, two Chinese, Chan Ming, alias Siu Kau-chung, and Leung Kwai-sang, were fined $250, in default three months' hard labour, and $100, in default six weeks' hard labour, respectively, on the first charge by Mr. E. J. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning. The second charge was withdrawn from the second defendant, while the maximum fine of $250, in default three months' hard labour was imposed on the first accused.

Inspector K. W. Andrew of the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, stated that on information received, a female informant was sent to the temple. She enquired why she could not become a mother.

She was told by the first defendant that her blood was being sucked by a dragon, and that if she paid a sum of $8.80 he would purchase a lizard, a stork, and a tortoise for the purpose of extracting the blood from the toes, which he would use so that she could become a mother. He also gave a charm, which he instructed her to put under her pillow when she retired at night. She was also told to bring a garment for both herself and her husband.

The next day she went to the temple and paid the first defendant the money. He took the garments, and, with incense, began to worship, while the second defendant beat a small gong. At this stage the police entered the flat and arrested both men. The temple, concluded Inspector Andrew, had been in existence for the past three months.

CAN WE LIVE LIKE
CHRIST TO-DAY?*JUST WHAT IS MEANT
BY THIS QUESTION?FOLLOWING THE SPIRIT OF CHRIST'S TEACHING(By The Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan)

ONE of the great English daily papers has lately aroused a great deal of interest by publishing a series of articles on the question "Can A Man Live Like Christ To-day?"

It is a little difficult to understand why there has been such interest. After all, Christianity has been preached for 1,900 years. It has moulded the whole fabric of human progress, yet now we have to answer the question if what we have been preaching and teaching is possible and practicable!

There would not have been much doubt as to what the Christians of the early centuries would have had to say on the point. They went to their deaths on the strength of it, without hesitation, counting the cost as simply nothing. Why then must we ask the question to-day? We must either be lamentably ignorant of what Christ was and taught, or else life must be an infinitely more difficult thing now than it was then.

Assuming, however, that the question has been asked, what is the answer? First of all what do we mean by living like Him? It obviously does not mean going about as He did, wearing the clothes of the East, being tried before a Roman Governor, and at last dying upon a cross. Christ never intended that those who followed Him should be exact replicas of Himself in that way, so the question must be paraphrased into "Can we to-day, in our life and its relationships, reproduce the Spirit which was so essentially His?"

What were the characteristics of that Spirit?

Dependence On God

The more one studies the life of Our Lord and gets a general view of it, the very first thing we are bound to notice is His utter dependence upon God His Father. It was clearly brought out in the only recorded incident we have of His early years. Though He was only 12, He said then that He had to be about His Father's business; and all through His life, the same thing was noticeable.

To Him, God was a Being of infinite wisdom, a source of unfailing strength, a great companion. One Whose will must be done at all costs. Our Lord was always a lonely man. We never hear of Him seeking the advice of His earthly friends or asking them what He ought to do at any time. The One to Whom He always went was God, and always He returned from those hours of communion with Him, strengthened and refreshed, calm and serene.

To Christ what we call prayer was the most natural thing in the world, simply because He knew God to be so near and so wonderful in His love and care. That was why He used to seek His Father's blessing before He worked His miracles, before He chose the Twelve, before He set His face steadfastly to go up to Jerusalem, to Calvary and the Cross. God was always first in His life, far and away first, before His parents, before His friends, before everybody; and to do the right in God's sight the only thing that mattered.

Lee Yau, aged 17, was charged before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning with disorderly conduct in Wanchai yesterday.

He was bound over in a bond of $25 for one year and ordered to be sent to Canton.

Detective-Sergeant R. Fitches said that the defendant was seen on two occasions walking in Wanchai dressed in female clothing. This attracted a large crowd which it took some trouble to disperse.

Is This Impossible?

Is that so impossible to-day? We have not done it, and very often we are not inclined to do it, because so often it does not pay us in a worldly sense, but does that prove that it is not possible? Life would be a far grander and greater thing if we only allowed God a bigger share in it. It would make a world of difference to our daily business, and change all the big things in life with fresh wonder. It would revolutionise marriage if young people went to Him about it. It would sanctify our family life, if we took Him into it. Ninety-nine per cent. of us are afraid to do, because we do not know Him as a Friend Whom we are going to meet.

There was in Christ, too, a deep love for His fellow-men. We say that "blood is thicker than water" when we wish to imply that families are knit together closer than friends or acquaintances. But to Christ there was something thicker than blood—our brotherhood in God. He loved everybody. There were no barriers of social position, or wealth, or nationality. Always He strove to bring men into that brotherhood. Suspicion, fear of people never entered His mind. He never once said, "I must be careful of so and so."

Is this sort of love impossible? We have taken it for granted that it is, and that is just why the world has gone so sadly astray. Because we do not love men, suspicion and fear enter our relationships—with them; individuals are suspicious of each other, nations are afraid of nations, employers and employees fear each other. Our general attitude is "I do not know what he may be up to next." Christ's attitude was "I don't care, I shall go on loving him just the same." A love like that is difficult, but Christianity was never meant to be easy.

The Divinity In Man

To Christ, too, there was always the thought of the divinity of man. Nobody ever placed humanity as high as He did. He always thought of them as God intended them to be; not as what they were, but what they might and could become. And always they responded. Is that impossible to-day? We don't do it, but what would happen if we did? We have only got to stop for a moment and think of the many people around us, about whom at some time or another we have said harsh and unkind things, whom we have criticised uncharitably, in whom we have deliberately chosen to see the worst. And it is the same all the world over. We could see the divinity in man if we wanted to. The truth is that we have found it difficult and have given it up.

Last of all there was in Christ a willingness to suffer. The great trouble with most of us is that we make happiness the sole aim and object of our lives. His heart bled over every piece of sin and suffering which He encountered.

Is that kind of suffering impossible for us? It is not very inviting, we do not want to suffer, we would rather forget the sadness and sin and sorrows of life. The spirit of Christ was to spend and be spent in the service of His fellow men, to bind up their wounds, to stoop down and touch those who were down and out, even though it meant soiling His hands sometimes. It is difficult, it may not be attractive; but the answer is that men can live like Christ to-day, if they want to.

CHINESE WIN OVER AMERICANS IN BASEBALL LEAGUE

Thompson was very good behind the bat and his throws to second base were one of the highlights of the game.

Matty Chang Hurt

Matty Chang was unfortunately hurt when Hirsch came into collision with him at first base in the fourth innings. The Chinese ace was somewhat dazed and was forced to leave the field for a while, but returned later.

The Americans opened the scoring when Howard brought Harris home on a two-base hit, but the Chinese retaliated with three runs in the next innings, when M. Chang, who reached first on a hit, and W. Ching, who was given a walk, crossed the plate on J. Kau's hit. The latter came home through a fielder's error.

The Americans scored again the next time up when Thompson romped home on a two-base hit by Williams. The Chinese, however, increased their lead in this innings with two more runs through Chung and W. Ching.

Lawrence blanked the Chinese in the next two innings, but in the last loose fielding enabled the Chinese to score two more runs.

Chinese Further Ahead

The Americans were unable to score in the last four innings, but it was not so much through the pitching of Ed. Chang as to the excellent support he received in the field.

London, Yesterday.
England, Scotland and Ireland tied for the International Amateur Golf Championship at Royal Lytham and Staines.

England needed only a draw with Scotland yesterday to win the title outright, but Scotland won by 11 matches to 1, with three halved. — Reuter.

London, Yesterday.—The death of one of the famous racehorse owners, Lord Woolavington, recalls the sensational victory of his Epsom Derby horse, the Eclipse, in 1901, when the South American jockey Gomez's girths broke some distance from the finish, and Gomez gathered up the saddle and weight cloths under one arm and rode home barebacked. — Reuter.

General Tsai Ting-kai, above, stressed the need for physical fitness among the Chinese of the Colony at the inauguration ceremony of the Sze Kwoong Track and Field Athletic Association at the St. Francis Hotel yesterday.

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Alexandria, Yesterday.
Charred beyond recognition the bodies of the occupants of the "Savoia 81," the plane carrying the Italian Minister of Public Works, Signor Razza, which crashed on Thursday while en route to East Africa, were conveyed yesterday to Cairo, where, after embalming, they will be transported to Italy.

The cause of the accident is still unknown, but it is thought to have probably been due to the petrol tank having exploded. The plane belonged to one of the most reliable military types, and had flown 20,000 kilometres without the slightest mishap.

EXPLORER'S DEATH

A message from Milan states that the tragic end of the young Minister Signor Razza caused particular consternation there, where for many years he was a Fascist and the first Fascist editor of the Popolo d'Italia.
The death of the African explorer Raimondo Franchetti, who was a passenger in the ill-fated plane, is also deeply mourned. Franchetti made extensive journeys through Asia and East Africa, particularly Abyssinia, where, as the Messaggero pointed out yesterday, he had close personal ties with a number of Abyssinia's tributary chiefs. — Trans-Ocean Service.

Precautions Taken At Berne

ANTI-FASCISTS EXPELLED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Berne, Yesterday.

The anti-Fascists arrested last Saturday when about to launch at Tessin balloons carrying propaganda leaflets destined for Italy will be expelled from Switzerland, in accordance with the decision of the Bundesrat (the Federal Council) yesterday. The arrested group consists of three Italians, one Frenchman and one Austrian named Alfredo Zanella.

The Bundesrat based its decision upon the consideration that it was a matter of an action hostile to the present Italian regime and hence one likely to disturb the good relations between Italy and Switzerland.—Trans-Ocean Service.

Hong Kong Personalities

After going through the regular course at the Police Training School at Thillaur, he was sent to the Hills to learn Urdu and was attached to the Police at Rawalpindi.

Returning to Hong Kong in December 1913 he was appointed Assistant Superintendent of Police for the New Territories, holding this post until he was seconded for military service early in 1916, when he joined the 2/118th Infantry in Bombay, where, four months later, he was transferred to the 55th (Coke's) Rifles, Frontier Force, and was sent to German East Africa. Invalided out the same year with acute malaria, contracted on the Rovuma River, he was, after a period of leave, sent back to India, where he served on the Staff at Simla until the Armistice, leaving the Army with the rank of Lieutenant.

After a period of Home leave he returned to duty in Hong Kong in January 1920 and in the following year served as Acting A. D. C. to the then Governor, Sir Reginald Stubbs. In June 1925 he was promoted Deputy Superintendent of Police, the title being changed to Divisional Superintendent in 1930; and last year he became Acting Deputy Inspector General.

Mr. Burlingham, whose favourite recreation is shooting, has the distinction of having bagged the only tiger known to have been shot in the Colony. The beast, which was finally disposed of near the Shataukok Road, New Territories, had killed a Chinese villager, and mauled a European Police Sergeant and an Indian Constable, both of whom succumbed to their wounds, in previous attempts to shoot it. The animal, which differs considerably from the northern form of tiger, is supposed to have travelled up from Indo-China. Its head now adorns the lobby at Police Headquarters.

Mr. Burlingham left on Friday for the Empress of Canada, on short leave, which he is spending in Japan. He expects to return to the Colony in three weeks' time.

MR. TEELING'S EVENTFUL TRIP EAST

Narrow Escapes In P.I. Floods

MISSES BOAT TO HONG KONG

Manila, Yesterday.
Mr. William Teeling, a British Parliamentary candidate and a frequent contributor to the London Times on world and social affairs, reached Manila late last night after an eventful trip from Baguio.

He left the mountain resort against the advice of his friends last Saturday in a motor-car, accompanied by Mr. Ramon Rocas, a magazine publisher, who is the son of the well-known publisher of the newspaper Tribune.

They were soon cut off in the flood area, after which they decided to hike to Manila. They had several narrow escapes and were involved in a landslide, in which Mr. Teeling was caught up to the knees.

At one point they accompanied a dead body across the river in a home-made raft. At Dagupan they were forced to climb a tree in order to enter a hotel, which was surrounded by 10 feet of water. They amused themselves at the hotel catching rice snakes on the floor.

As a result of his enforced stay in the flood area Mr. Teeling missed the Hong Kong boat yesterday, and is probably sailing next week.—Reuter.

COLOURFUL CAREER

Mr. Teeling, who contested the Silverton Division of West Ham in 1929, was Chairman of the Essex Federation of the Junior Imperial League from 1929 to 1930, and Executive Chairman of the Catholic Emigration Society of Great Britain and Northern Ireland from 1929 to 1931. In 1930, he spent a year in Canada, making exhaustive studies of immigration and economic conditions; studied unemployment in the United States in 1931-32; tramped through England, also France, Italy, Germany and Austria, often living in doss-houses, to study actual unemployment conditions at first hand in 1932-33, and led a pilgrimage of British unemployed to Rome and was received in audience by the Pope in 1933.

AIDING SAFETY OF AIRCRAFT

Special Investigation In England

London, Yesterday.
The National Physical Laboratory, at the request of the Civil Aviation Department of the Air Ministry, has undertaken an investigation of several problems connected with visibility and the safety of aircraft.

An attempt is being made to discover means of aiding the landing of aircraft when an aerodrome is obscured by fog, and of warning aircraft in the neighbourhood of high obstructions under poor visibility conditions. Experiments will be made at selected aerodromes. A monoplane has been specially equipped for the purpose, and the ground installation will include radio beacons.—British Wireless Service.

THIN END OF THE WEDGE

Manchukuo And The Extra'lity Issue

Tokyo, Yesterday.
The Government has approved of the abandonment of extraterritoriality by Manchukuo. Japan will maintain the South Manchukuo Railway zone, but will transfer the administrative rights to Manchukuo.—Reuter.

THE PASSING HOUR

us so substantial a piece of furniture." The House roared with laughter, and the effect of the peroration was destroyed. Nowadays people say "politics is tough," and leave it to bores, only waking up when they find that the bores have committed them to all sorts of things they do not like.

Or take Lord Rosebery's remark when the Liberal Government had arrived at the compromise of proceeding with the Death Duties and postponing the abolition of the House of Lords. "The Government has resolved to preserve a unicameral constitution in which one takes are imposed by one house and paid by the other." Does one ever see a situation compressed into a phrase by the gentleman who have at their disposal the tremendous weapon of the microphone? Is it that speakers have no longer any confidence that the public will see the point?

HUMOUR AND WAR

NOTHING is so out of proportion to modern conditions as modern war. If humour seems to be the wrong method of tackling so serious a subject, the reply is that the long seven-year boredom of the Disarmament Conference has not been conspicuously successful, for nothing done in that building which was so prophetically built of substantial masonry, has ever got beyond the geriatric ranks of the so-called "experts" to lodge itself in the minds and the hearts of the people, who do, after all, give the experts their cue. In the war there were the savage cartoons of Raemacher—suitable to the time. There has been nothing like Tenniel's "Dropping the Pilot," which was copied all over the world, and which summed up the situation so neatly that the Kaiser bought the original and hung it in his Palace at Potsdam. Lord Acton, whose authority was second to none, said that the prime cause of the Reformation was the collection of stories in mediaeval Latin called the "Gesta Romanorum," which set Europe laughing at the follies of authorities that had always been shrouded in deference and solemnity. At a later date, if Rousseau supplied the ideals, it was Voltaire's mordant wit that supplied the sword of the French Revolution. In England, from the time of Piers Plowman downwards, there has never been a great popular movement that was not linked together by the bond of a common laugh. To-day we read of politicians with one accord behaving like spoilt children, and everybody considers it polite to take them seriously. There is no glory in having bigger guns than one's neighbour, but men are still, as in Shakespeare's day, "seeking the bubble Reputation, e'en at the cannon's mouth." What we want is somebody to prick the bubble.

"I made extensive trial of Kalzana in a case of Neuritis. I have been surprised at the great value of Kalzana in toning up the nervous system."

Irritability

Very often that irritable feeling is due to nothing else but a lack of certain minerals in the body. Start taking Kalzana, the mineral food, for a time. In the majority of instances this results in a remarkable improvement in health, especially in cases of Nervous Irritability, Nerve Pains and Neuralgia.

Prof. C. A. Ronzevalle, M.A. (London), writes about his experience with Kalzana:

"I was just recovering from a nervous breakdown, when 'Kalzana' was brought to my notice. I started taking Kalzana without delay and the results so far have been surprising: the digestive organs are able to cope successfully with any kind of food, the neuralgic pains in the face have disappeared and there is a general sense of well-being and fitness which I have not known for some time past."

Kalzana contains the vital minerals that build power of resistance in the body and tone-up the function of all the organs. Kalzana is not a drug, but a mineral food which must do you good. Start your course to-day and you will soon enjoy sound health again.

BUS FARES NOT PAID

Two Youths Fined At Kowloon Court

MAGISTRATE'S WARNING

"You are a pair of young scoundrels. Of all the miserable, sneaky posts that I have had to deal with you are the worst. I will let you go with a fine, but next time I will send you to gaol," remarked Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning to two youths, James Ernest Scott, an apprentice fitter of the Far East Aviation Company at the Kai Tak Aerodrome, and Charles Wong, a licensed motor-driver employed at the Kai Tak Aerodrome, who were fined $25 each for travelling on bus No. 811 without paying their fares.

In outlining the case, Inspector Chester-Woods of the Kowloon City Police Station stated that both defendants boarded the bus at Kai Tak at about 5.40 p.m. on Friday. When asked for their fare they replied that they had monthly tickets. An inspector of the bus company asked the first defendant for his ticket, and the latter showed the inspector a monthly student's ticket. The second defendant could not produce his ticket, and stated that he had left it at home. He also could not reply to the inspector when asked what the number of his ticket was. The inspector told him that he would have to go to the police station with him.

Takes To His Heels
As the first defendant was about to jump off the bus at the stop outside the Kowloon Police Station, the second defendant asked him for the ticket and presented it to the inspector stating that it was his (second defendant). The first defendant took to his heels, but was arrested and both the boys were brought to the station.

At the station the first defendant stated "I was broke and hard up so I asked Wong to lend me his ticket". Inspector Chester-Woods continued that the monthly ticket belonged to the brother of the second defendant, who is a student at the La Salle College. The second defendant asked his brother to get a certificate from the Headmaster and was able to purchase the student ticket.

Statement Denied
The first defendant denied that he told Inspector Chester-Woods that he (defendant) was hard up and broke and that he asked the second defendant to lend him the ticket. He continued that his uncle gave him 20 cents every day for his fare to the Kai Tak Aerodrome. Somehow or other he lost his fare on Friday and did not know it until he boarded the bus.

ROOSEVELT'S FIRM STAND IN FACE OF STRIKE

Government Terms Or Loss Of Relief Returns

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

Washington, Yesterday. President Roosevelt is determined to stand firm against the threatened strike of New York relief workers. He told a press conference that those in need of relief could take the jobs offered or go without. If they refused the Government's terms they were not entitled to draw relief.—Reuter.

STRIKE BREAKS OUT

A later message from New York states that the strike has broken out, but so far only 727 out of a total of 100,000 workers have ceased work. The Union leaders claim that the strike will be in full swing by Monday.

General Johnson has declared that all who do not return to work by Monday may be struck off the payrolls.—Reuter.

A message received yesterday stated that a general strike of all works in progress by administration workers throughout the city, possibly affecting 100,000 workers, was scheduled for yesterday as a protest against the Government's wage-scale of $93.50 for a three-week month for skilled workers.

General Hugh Johnson, ex-N. R. A. Head, broadcast an impassioned appeal as a last minute effort to avert the strike.

RIVER TRAGEDY OF BROTHERS

Body Of One Boy Found

Two brothers, James Stanley, aged 16, and Thomas Stanley, aged 13, of Sandringham-road, Willesden Green, N.W., were reported recently by their parents to be missing.

The boys had left home, to spend the day by the river at Richmond, but did not return at the time they were expected.

Their parents notified the police. Inquiries in the vicinity of Petersham and Richmond revealed that the boys were last seen walking along the towing path in bathing costumes.

The river was dragged. Later the body of Thomas was found.

BOY FOUND HANGED

Gruesome Discovery By Uncle

An inquest was held recently on a boy of 14 who was found hanged by a scarf from the banisters in his uncle's house at St. George's-avenue, Sheerness, Kent. Mr. W. Callen returned home at eleven o'clock one night to find the boy, Ronald Charles Parker, dead.

Parker's parents live in Ranelagh-road, Sheerness, but since he was about a year old he had lived with his uncle and aunt. He had been cycling earlier in the evening, but appeared to be well when he returned.

PARIS CONFERENCE

BARON ALOISI TO HEAD ITALIAN DELEGATION

NO BRITISH RECRUITS FOR ETHIOPIAN ARMY

Rome Yesterday.

It is officially announced that Baron Aloisi will head the Italian delegation to the conference at Paris on August 16, when Britain, France and Italy will discuss the Italo-Abyssinian situation on the basis of the 1906 treaty.

Well-informed Italian circles last night were not optimistic that the conference would serve any useful purpose. A message from London states that the Ethiopian Legation has declined the application from Britons for enlistment in the army, as questions of nationality and expense are involved.—Reuter.

A message from Addis Ababa states that a special Abyssinian mission to Japan, headed by Mr. Daba Biru, who will be the first Abyssinian Consul to Japan, started from there yesterday for Tokyo. The Abyssinian Government declares that the appointment of the Consul is prompted by diplomatic considerations and has nothing to do with the delivery of war materials.

A message from Warsaw states that delegations of Abyssinian business men have arrived at Lodz, where, according to a semi-official statement, they have purchased a large quantity of readymade uniforms for the equipment of the Abyssinian army. Negotiations for buying other textile goods for the army are going on.—Trans-Ocean Service.

NO EXCUSE FOR WAR
St. Pauls, Minn., To-day.

"There is no excuse whatever for either Italy or Abyssinia to go to war," declared Mr. Frank Kellogg, author of the anti-war pact, when interviewed by Reuter.

"Every nation has the right to call on the other parties to the pact to maintain the peace and the integrity of the treaty," he continued.—Reuter.

TASTE FOR LAGER

Britain Is Germany's Best Customer

Berlin. England and her colonies drank 413,000 gallons of German beer in the first five months of this year—43,000 gallons more than in the corresponding period of last year.

This represented nearly a quarter of the total German beer exports of 1,659,000 gallons. Ireland and Belgium were Germany's next best customers.

FILM PRODUCER IN TROUBLE

Ejected From Railway Station

Geoffrey Collyer, aged 26, described as a film producer, of Langley Park, Beckenham, was fined 10s. at Bromley recently for being drunk and disorderly.

A constable said he was called to eject Collyer from Bromley North railway station. In the street Collyer became disorderly and he was forced to lock him up.

CHILD WELFARE IN CHINA TO-DAY

Strong Movement Set On Foot

MINISTER OF EDUCATION GIVES BROADCAST

Nanking.

In the course of a speech delivered at the Central Broadcasting Station recently, on the eve of the inauguration of the National Children's Year, Dr. Wang Shi-chieh, Minister of Education, urged that the family, the community and the State should co-operate in the promotion of child welfare.

Government Interest

The reason why the National Government lays such stress on holding the National Children's Year, Dr. Wang stated, is fourfold. First, it originates from the human instinctive desire for racial existence. Second, it is a manifestation of man's aspiration toward higher ideals. He wants the next generation to be better than the present generation in every way. Third, the promotion of child welfare lays the foundation for the building of a strong nation. Fourth, through publicity work during the year parents will be impressed by the significance of better protection and education to their children. In the meantime, closer co-operation between the family, the community and the State will be effected.

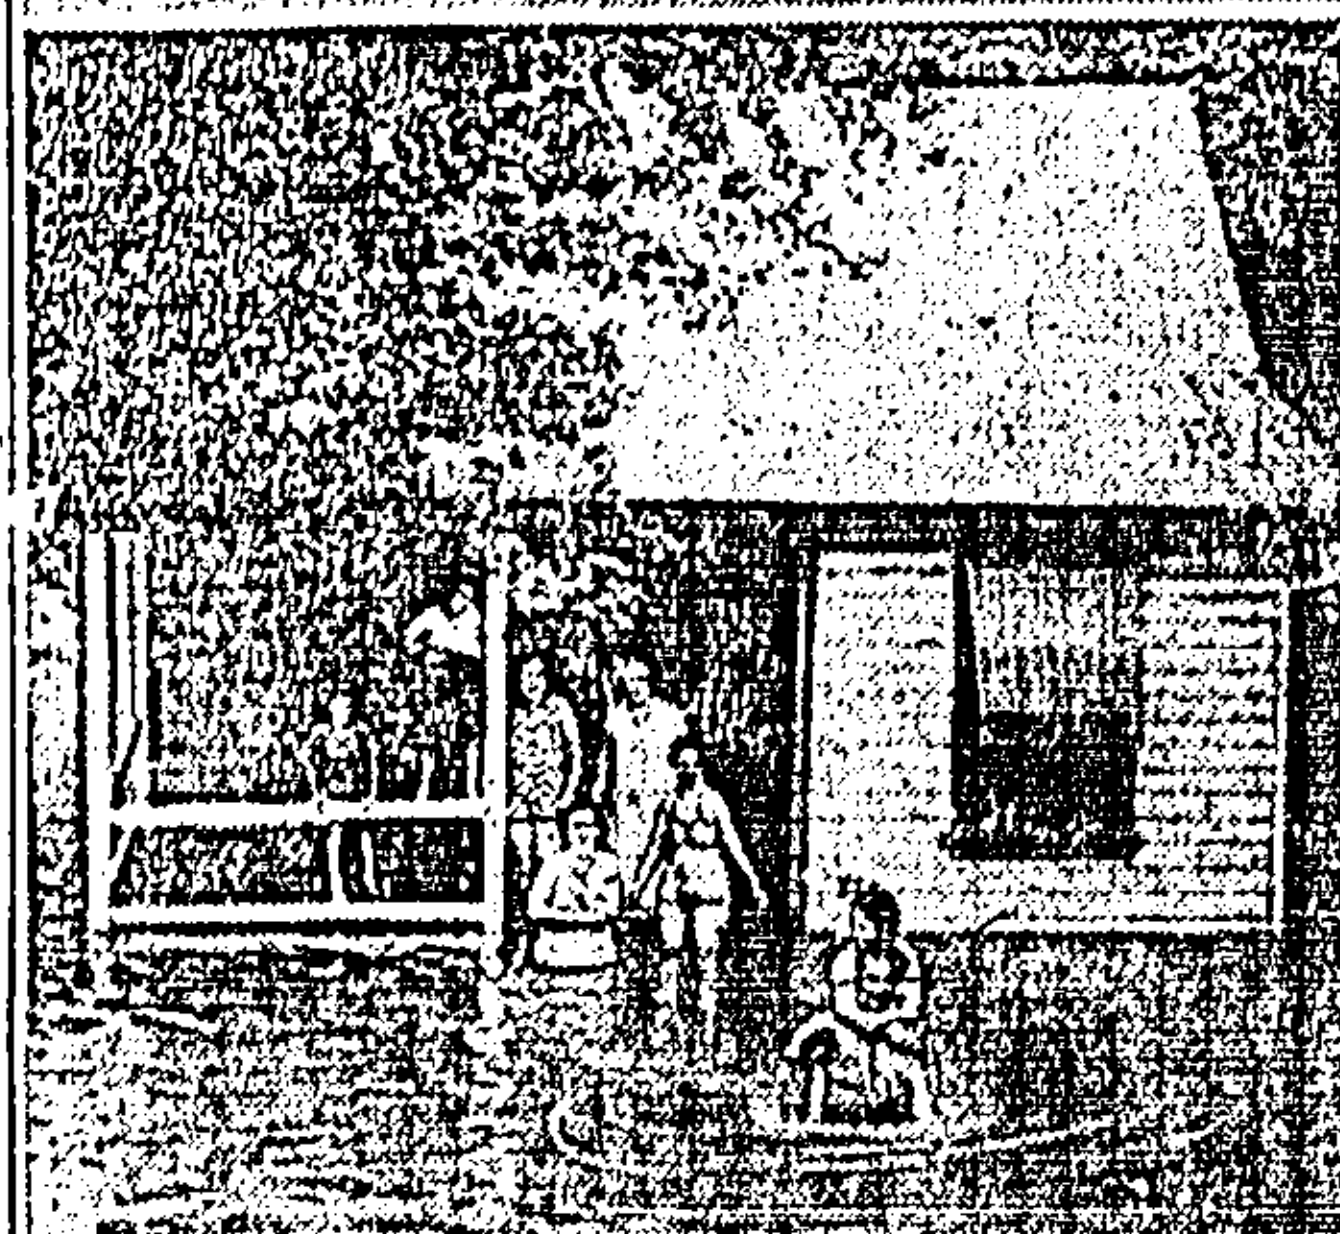

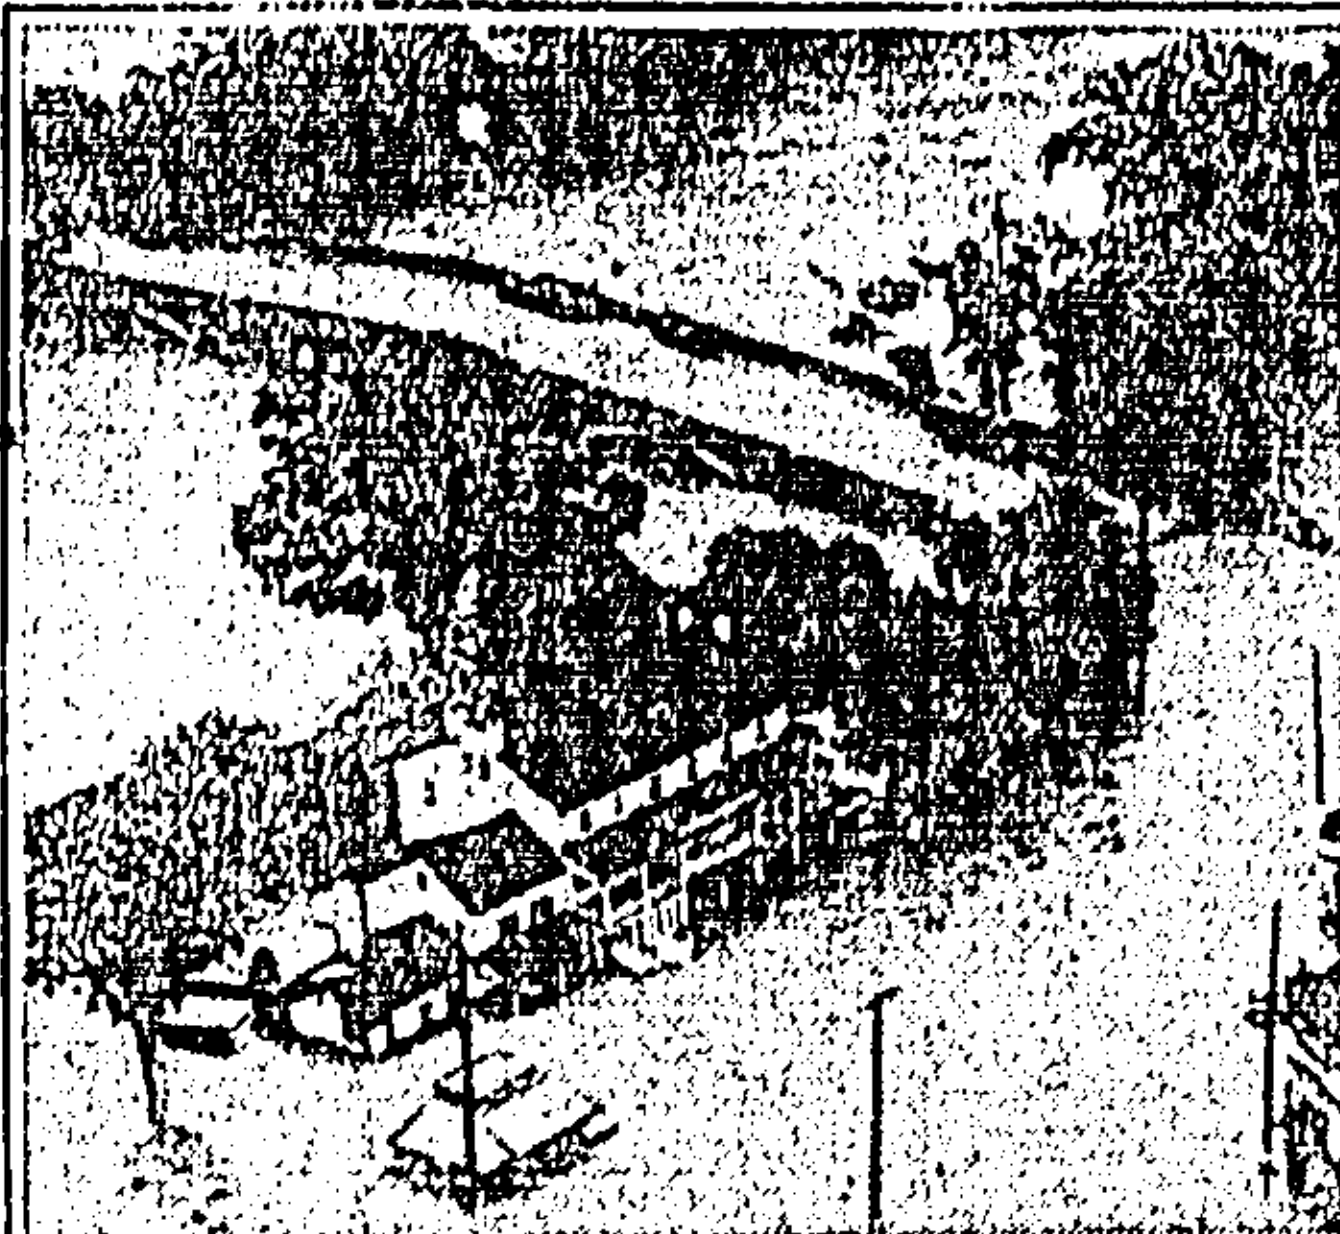

The promotion of free education for school-age children, Dr. Wang emphasized, is the fundamental step towards the elimination of illiteracy in China. In view of its importance regulations governing the promotion of free education were promulgated by the Executive Yuan last May.

Protective Measures

Turning to child protection activities, Dr. Wang said that these generally include the following: (1) maternal protection; (2) baby protection; (3) child labour protection; (4) relief of deserted children; (5) rearing of invalid children; and (6) reformation of delinquent children.

Concerning the reformation of demoralised children, Dr. Wang said that there has been a tendency toward an increase of juvenile delinquency during recent years. Punishment, Dr. Wang opined, is not the fundamental correction for such crimes. Child criminals and demoralised children should be won back to morality by reformative and educational measures.

Concluding, Dr. Wang urged the whole nation to make good use of the Children's Year for the promotion of child welfare.—Central News Agency.

As the waters receded in the flooded sections of New York State rivers and creeks, overflowed their banks last month in Pennsylvania with the results here shown. The top photograph is an arrival of a Coleridge hotel partly under water. The centre shows a local family laughing in the face of calamity and donning bathing suits. ITALY NOT TREADING ON BRITAIN'S TOES

HAWARIATE INTERVIEWED
The statement that an Italo-Abyssinia war could only be prevented by Abyssinia arming herself was stressed by the Abyssinian Minister in Paris, Mr. Hawariate, in an interview published in the Excelsior.

After declaring that the old saying, "If you want to keep the peace, prepare for war," was still valid, the Abyssinian spokesman pointed out that his country was compelled to buy arms abroad, whereas Italy was manufacturing them. It was therefore a glaring injustice if foreign Governments placed an embargo on arms exports to Abyssinia.

The Minister confirmed that numerous persons of all nationalities were volunteering for the Abyssinian army, but added that, lacking instructions from Addis Ababa, the Paris Legation had to refuse all such applications.

BELGIAN INSTRUCTORS

He went on to say that Belgian military instructors had been carrying on their work in Abyssinia for some time past, and that his Government would let it be known if it had any need for other military specialists.

In conclusion the Minister stated that Abyssinia was looking forward with confidence to the verdict of the Arbitration Commission and was placing her faith in the League of Nations, although she was determined to defend herself, if the necessity should arise, either with or without arms.—Trans-Ocean Service.

CHINESE MISSION DELINEATED BY SIR F. LEITH-ROSS

SHANGHAI BUSINESS
Sir Frederick said that he hoped also to come into contact with the most important English trading interests in Shanghai, many of whose London representatives he had already seen. He denied the report that he intended to visit Washington, but hoped to meet some American representatives in Shanghai with whom he might co-operate.

While in Canada Sir Frederick will spend two days in Toronto with relations, and he is also staying a few days in Tokyo, when he hopes to renew personal contacts.—Reuter.

GREAT DISCOVERY IN SICILY

Ancient Township Of Vast Size

At Ravanusa, in Sicily, Professor Mugazzini, Director of the Palermo Museum, has discovered an ancient town of vast proportions. He has laid bare stout walls constructed of huge un-mortared blocks of stone flanked by bastions, and in the centre of the town, a well preserved temple.

The remains are believed to be those of the ancient fortress of Henna which sustained sieges in turn by the Carthaginians, Greeks, Romans, Saracens and Normans.

STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK

1,000 TROOPS DRAFTED INTO TOWN

ASSEMBLY OF PREFECTS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.

No more rioting took place at Toulon yesterday after order had been restored in the early hours of the morning. Peace also now prevails in the other naval ports of Brest, Lorient and Cherbourg, where the strikers, as in Toulon, have returned to work.

The streets at Toulon represent an indescribable scene of destruction, reminiscent of nothing so much as a heavy bombardment. Some 90 per cent. of the shop windows are smashed in, while paving stones and the remnants of barricades are strewn all over the roadway.

Numerous shops bear evidence of having been plundered, among them that of an arms dealer, where the rioters obtained rifles and repeating pistols with which they opened rapid fire on the Garde Mobile in this quarter.

LONG ARM OF THE LAW

ARRESTED AFTER 13 YEARS

Paris.

Thirteen years ago Leon Auragon was sentenced to death in his absence for the double murder of two brothers, Jean-Baptiste Alavoine, aged 52, and Louis-Celestin Alavoine, aged 64.

While out early one morning recently for a walk, he was stopped by two police inspectors who recognised him. He was arrested. It was found that since the crime he had been living in Paris under the name of Leon Touzot.

INSECT "STARS" AT ZOO

Glowworms' Display

Glowworms were the star turn at a late night opening of the London Zoo recently. Thousands of people visited the Zoo, and when, after dusk, the glowworms were placed along the grassy banks in the centre of the gardens crowds gathered to see them.

The little greenish lights gave the appearance of a town on a distant hillside.

CAMPBELL BLACK BOUND FOR HOME

London, Yesterday.—Mr. Campbell Black, the famous airman, was expected to take off from Cairo last evening for England after having had to abandon his record-breaking flight to South Africa on account of engine trouble which developed on the first stage of his journey.—British Wireless Service.

Just like her fashionable sisters far to the south, this Eskimo woman of Northern Canada keeps up with the style. She is powdering her nose from a vanity case secured from a trader, probably sacrificing half a winter's supply of blubber, just to be in the fashion swim.

Detachments of the Garde Mobile were still patrolling the streets in all parts of the town yesterday, while companies of Senegal troops were posted in front of the police Prefecture station and the gas and electricity works creating the impression of martial law, though this had not actually been declared. Nevertheless, the authorities drafted a total of 1,000 troops, including artillery, into the town.

COMPENSATION GRANTED

A message from Le Havre states that the Champlain was at last able to sail for New York yesterday, when she put out to sea at 2 p.m.

The striking seamen agreed to resume their duties after the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique had agreed to provide some compensation for the 3 per cent. wage cut substituted for the 10 per cent. cut prescribed by the Government's economy decree. Furthermore, the company promised to make a revision of the entire conditions of employment.

Prefects Assemble At The Quai d'Orsay

FIRST TIME IN HISTORY OF THIRD REPUBLIC

A message from Paris states that for the first time in the history of the Third Republic the French Premier assembled at the Quai d'Orsay yesterday afternoon all the Prefects of the French Departments to give them instructions about the application and execution of the numerous emergency laws issued in connection with the great retrenchment and deflation campaign.

The unusual character of this event and the keen interest with which the French people are following M. Laval's plan for the rehabilitation of the country's finances made the Quai d'Orsay yesterday a scene of great animation, crowds gathering to catch a glimpse of the Prefects arriving and departing.—Trans-Ocean Service.

68 ARRESTS MADE

Paris, Yesterday.

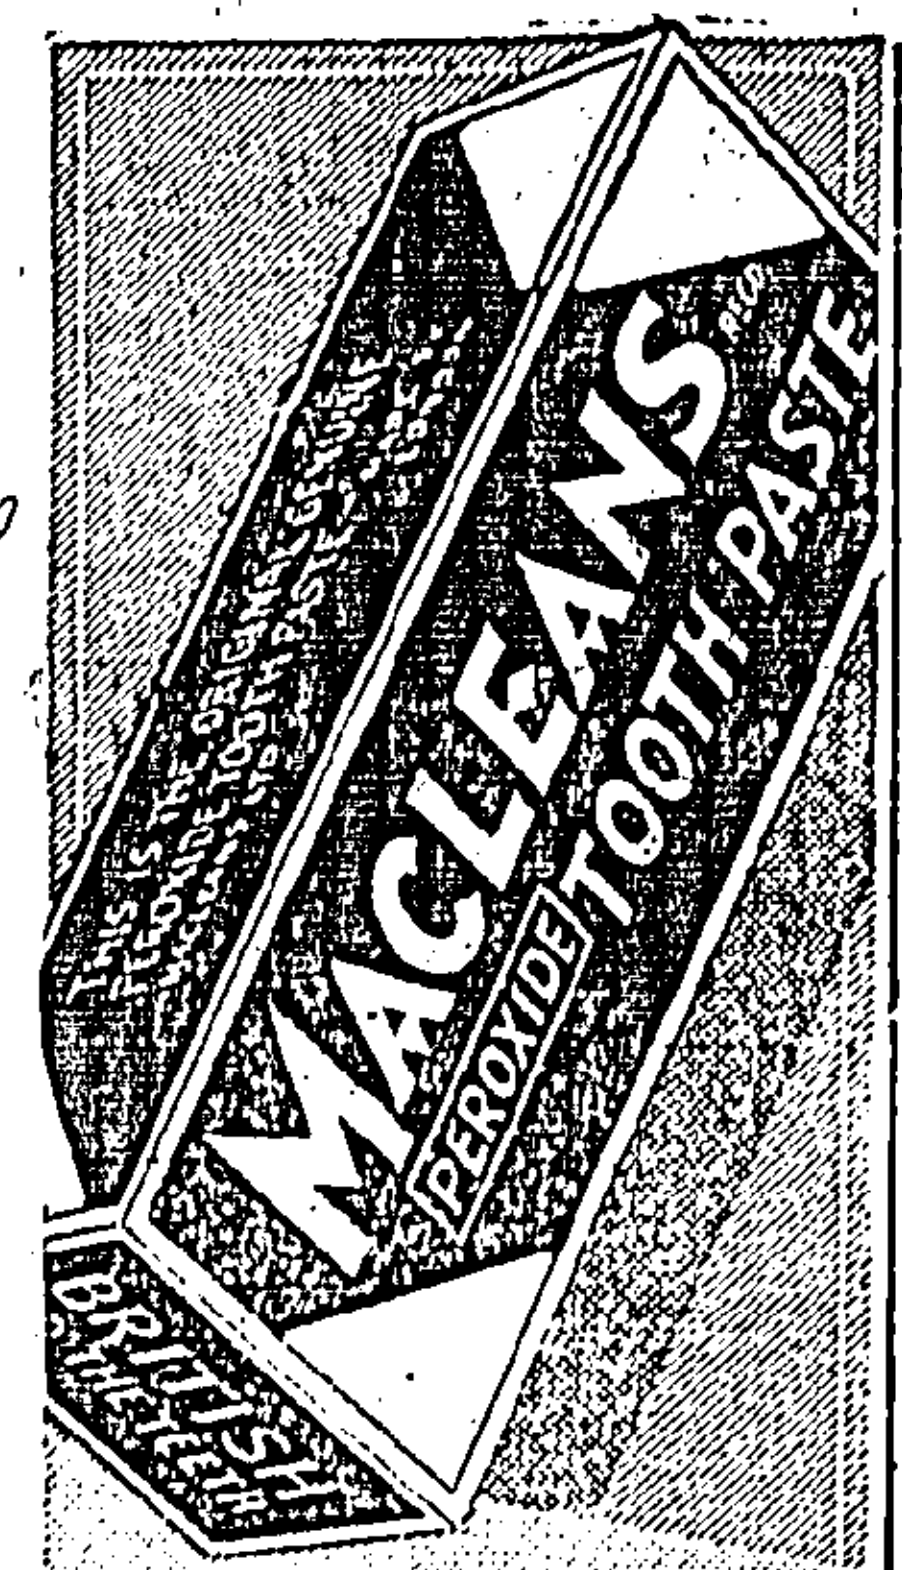

The Ministry of Interior announces that 68 arrests were made at Toulon on Thursday night. One Italian was found to be carrying explosives, and two police inspectors were injured.

The day passed quietly at Toulon and Le Havre, though the shops at Toulon closed and hundreds of smashed windows testify to the violence of Thursday's rioting.

In addition to the Champlain the Illers Colombe and Lafayette sailed from Le Havre, the former for a Baltic cruise and the latter for Canada, with 320 French ex-service men aboard.

LAVAL ADDRESSES PREFECTS
Meanwhile, for the first time in the history of the Third Republic, Prefects from the whole country assembled in Paris to hear from M. Laval an address on the mechanism of the new decree laws, designed to protect the franc and assure economic recovery.

The only absentees were the Prefects of the Departments of Var and Finistere, who were detained by the disturbed conditions in Toulon and Brest respectively.—Reuter.

BURGLAR STARTS FIRE

Vicarage Set
Alight

SKELETON KEY FOUND

A burglar who early one day last month broke into St. Benet's Vicarage, Lady Margaret-road, Kentish Town, is thought to have caused a fire which was discovered later.

The Rev. H. C. Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, said:

"I was awakened about 5.30 by a neighbour, who told me that smoke was pouring out of my kitchen. On going down I found the window casements ablaze.

"My housekeeper kept the flames under control until the fire brigade arrived.

"After they had gone we found that a burglar had tried to enter the house by practically every door. The bolts prevented him doing this and he then cut a pane of glass from the dining-room window. He entered the dining-room and, when climbing through the serving hatch into the kitchen, must have left a light on the window ledge.

"He took a small sum of money. After everything had been cleared up we found a skeleton key lying inside the French windows."

FOOT-BINDING AS A CHINESE CUSTOM LEGENDS CONCERNING ITS ORIGIN

MORE PROBABLE REASONS

(By Phyllis Juby)

"SHE walks — it is the poetry of motion," must have been written before the days of foot-binding in China, for there is no beauty in the movement of crippled feet. Yet certainly small feet, bound or natural, as small waists, have always been much admired by the Chinese. The poets tell us that woman's "airy tread" leaves no mark behind in the dust, no scars upon traversed moss, and does not hurt the flowers trampled upon. But, although this custom of foot-binding is a peculiarity of China alone, the Chinese themselves are not agreed upon its origin or the reason for it.

None of the famous poets of the Tang dynasty (A.D. 606-918) makes any allusion to the custom. In one instance there is a reference to a lady's foot of six inches in length, but, although that is small, there is no mention of artificial means. The tenth century is generally accepted as marking the origin of foot-binding, but those who believe it to be earlier have ample reason to justify their view. In a book written in A.D. 150 there is the following reference to the feet of a lady: "The sole of the foot was flat and the toes were kept close together, being bound round and round by strong silk bandages which make them small, after the custom of the Palace."

Most Ancient Legend

Indeed, one tradition as to the origin of foot-binding goes back to T'a Ki, the infamous Imperial concubine of about 1150 B.C., who caused the downfall of the Shang dynasty. The romancer tells the story that the evil spirit who took possession of her body and caused her to do all her evil deeds belonged to the fox family, and that, when it had assumed her form, its feet by some accident retained the shape of the fox's foot. In order to disguise this, it had to use ingenious wrappings to prevent people from suspecting it. After the supposed T'a Ki had become Queen, the ladies of her court sought, of course, to gain her favour and crippled their feet to the very smallest size, to resemble hers.

Since foot-binding has so often been associated with T'a Ki, perhaps it was that she had some natural deformity that she endeavoured to disguise, and her maids of honour, to flatter her, sought to deform their own feet and make them as small as stringent binding would make them.

The "Golden Lily"

But T'a Ki has a rival. Pan Fei, too, has been charged with having introduced the habit of foot-binding in China. Pan Fei, celebrated for her gracefulness and beauty, was the concubine of the Emperor Tung Hwan Hou of the T'ai' dynasty (fifth century A.D.). It so happened that the old palace of Nanking was burnt during the second year of the Emperor's reign, so he proceeded to build a more magnificent one. The buildings were to rival in splendour anything that had ever preceded them; the walls were plastered with a substance impregnated with musk, thus rendering them perpetually fragrant. The floors were covered with the most beautiful designs selected from the work of celebrated artists of the day. And it was Pan Fei, his favourite, who enjoyed the delights of this famous palace. In one room especially the Emperor loved to sit with her; a room paved with golden lilies that were made with the utmost care by the best goldsmiths in the capital.

One day, as Pan Fei was walking before the Emperor in this golden lily chamber, Tung Hwan was so charmed with her exquisite grace that, enraptured, he cried out, "See! Every step she takes causes a lily to grow!" And as the favourite term for the artificially cramped feet is "golden lily," it has been supposed that the custom originated with Pan Fei. Her Imperial lover now caused flowers to be carved in relief on the soles of her shoes, so that wherever she trod the impress of a flower was left upon the ground. Not content with that, he ordered that the streets she passed through were to be strewn with flowers made of gold-leaf.

Pan Fei came to an unhappy end in A.D. 501, however, when Hsiao Yen entered the capital. He was indeed so struck with her beauty that he wanted to keep her, but he had to admit with reluctance that the fall of the dynasty was due to her and, when his minister insisted, she was put to death.

STRANGE DEMAND FILLED

Snake-Charmers From Labour Exchange

TWO COLOURED SEAMEN
APPLY, WITH SNAKES

Two coloured seamen brought their snakes with them when they applied at Liverpool Employment Exchange recently for jobs as snake charmers.

A notice had been posted on the vacancies board of the Exchange following a request from area headquarters in Manchester for the services of snake charmers, but officials were astonished when the jobs were actually applied for.

Demonstrations

The men, however, demonstrated that they were competent to fill the posts.

An official said after: "The inquiry was probably directed to Liverpool because we have so many jacks-of-all-trades among the men from the docks. We have frequent requests for circus performers and once found some tight-rope walkers and fire-eaters at short notice."

Traditional belief in the original goes back to still another famous beauty, Yao Niang, a concubine who lived about the year A.D. 970. She was said to have bound her feet in order to arch them to the semblance of the crescent moon.

Better Reasons

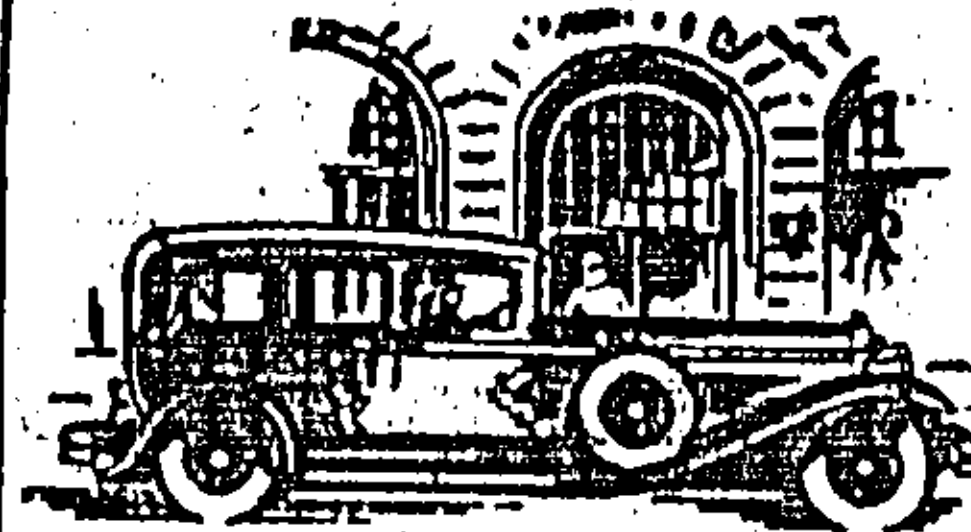

Other reasons for this custom have been suggested. Some say that it was to prevent women from walking about and thus from doing men's work; so that many date women's habitual submission in China from the introduction of foot-binding. Another Chinese writer says, "We bind our women's feet layer upon layer to cripple her, that she may not go a-gadding." Perhaps there is something in that, for the habit certainly tended to confine women more and more within the precincts of her apartments. There is a legend, too, to support that view.

The Empress of an Emperor who reigned in China before the flood, was found one day by her lord near the apartment of one of the principal officers of the household. Receiving from the Emperor a severe reprimand and a torrent of abuse for her misconduct, the frightened woman pleaded in her defence that it was not her fault, but that her feet, which were so very large, had borne her to the forbidden precincts of a man's apartment solely against her will. To make sure that such an unpleasant circumstance should not happen again, the offended Emperor ordered the fore-part of her feet to be amputated; and the Empress, to conceal the fact, informed her court that she intended to introduce the fashion of small feet and that all about her must follow her example—which they did, rather than be out of fashion!

Professor Giles, the great sinologist, believed, however, that beyond merely making the feet small, the original intention was more sensual. It was to make the thighs large, and how the Chinese knew this anatomical fact so early is a mystery, but certainly by walking with tightly bound feet an enlargement of the thighs was effected.

Distorting Perfect Feet
This taste for deforming the women's feet is most strange in a nation where the undistorted natural foot of a woman is the perfect model of beauty. The high instep, the arch of the sole, and the formation of heel and ankle of a Chinese woman's foot are beyond compare. But at an early age the foot, below the instep, was forced into a line with the leg, the toes then doubled down under the sole of the foot, the big toe being made to overlap the others. Bandages were then applied with an incredible amount of pressure and for about six weeks the child suffered agonies. After that the pain subsided and she was able to totter about.

By this practice the muscles of the leg were injured and partially destroyed, as the calf was allowed no development; the leg simply tapered from the knee downwards to the extremity of the foot. The length of the foot from heel to toe varied from three to four inches. So the women's walk, or their attempt to walk, was but an inelegant hobble; still, a Chinese poet has described them as "tottering willows of fascination."

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR WILLYS 77

Punishing Race Over
Tortuous Course

YALE STUDENT PILOTS CAR
IN SECOND WIN

LANGDON Quimby, a Yale Senior, in the last week of June repeated his racing performance of a year ago by again piloting a Willys 77 to victory in a revival of the famous old 100-mile Briarcliff road race at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., which was first held in 1908.

Quimby flashed over the finish line in 2 hours and 3 minutes, beating his winning time of 1934 by four minutes. He averaged a fraction less than 60 miles per hour for the 100 miles on a narrow, winding, bumpy course which spirals like ticker tape, fish, looks around right-angled, unbanked turns, roller coasts along gravel or macadam roads and dives precipitously down grades which suggest a bobsled run.

Mr. Thorne, a student of Rutgers, in a Ford V8, finished second, with a foreign entry, a Bugatti, third. Another Willys 77 entry finished so close among the leaders that the Willys drivers captured the team event as well as the major honour.

Manufacturers of the Willys 77 were especially interested in the Briarcliff race, inasmuch as the first four cars to finish in both the 1934 and 1935 Indianapolis 500-mile classic were also powered with four-cylinder motors.

NEW UPHOLSTERY FABRIC

"Tree-Bark Cord" In
Chevrolets

"Tree-bark cord," an innovation in automobile upholstery fabrics, has been made optional to purchasers of Chevrolet Master de luxe models.

The fabric, new in pattern and colour, is made of selected wool, and combines the good wearing qualities of Bedford cord and its ease of cleaning with a distinctive new appearance. As its name indicates tree-bark cord, though a closely woven flat fabric, is corrugated in non-continuous ridges.

WILLYS MAY MAKE 10,000 MORE CARS

Permission Of U.S.
Court Sought

Willys-Overland officers went into the United States District Court at Toledo recently to ask permission to make an additional 10,000 Willys passenger cars.

Attorneys for the Company have returned from New York where they received permission from the bondholders' committee to continue operations beyond the 15,000 cars originally authorized and which will be completed soon.

LONGEST BUS RUN IS IN CHINA

Suiyuan To Sinkiang

From Suiyuan in northern China to Sinkiang, or Chinese Turkestan, the distance is 2,917 miles—forming one of the longest transport routes served by motor bus. Four to five months are required for the trip by camel; yet the Ford units now traversing it make it in twelve to thirteen days; and a Ford truck holds the record—nine days.

EASTBOURNE RALLY

Of the 308 cars entered for the R.A.C. Eastbourne Rally, 265 were British, only 14 per cent. being of foreign manufacture. Fifty-three different makes were represented.

SAN DIEGO HOLDS BIG FAIR

Unique Exhibition By Ford Motor Co.

FROM EARTH TO FINISHED
PRODUCT

All persons who plan a vacation tour in the United States this year should visit the California Pacific International Exposition in San Diego, California.

The Exposition, which opened on May 29 and continues through to November 11, commemorates the past and welcomes what is termed "a great new era of expansion and development for the West." Chief among the hundreds of exhibits is the Ford display, a huge circular building which houses exhibits dramatizing the progress of raw materials from the earth to the finished product—the modern Ford V-8 car.

In Beautiful Park

The Exposition is being held in beautiful Balboa Park, a landscaped and wooded area of 1,400 acres, with the huge white Ford Building in a prominent position. The circular main section of the Ford Building is 340 feet in diameter, with the walls of the outer section rising 40 feet. Inside the main section are two great corridors.

Along one corridor is shown the actual manufacture of Ford parts. In the other are grouped exhibits showing the technical development of the modern motor-car. A huge open court in the centre is landscaped with two small lakes arranged in the shape of the V-8 Ford insignia.

Nearby, in a landscaped park, are reproduced the "Roads of the Pacific"—sections of historic highways from countries bordering on the Pacific Ocean.

Outdoor Orchestra

Opposite this are the Ford Symphony Gardens, with an outdoor orchestra shell—in which symphony orchestras play. Scores of unusual exhibits, arranged so as to show the progress of the modern motor-car from the earth to the finished product, are housed in the building, which will be a permanent structure. Unusual lighting effects and a varied programme of amusements have been planned for the Ford building during the whole summer.

SPECTACULAR SIGN FOR FORDS

Design Changed Every Week

Two large display signs of the spectacular variety have been erected in Cleveland for the Ford Motor Co. Designed and constructed along the lines of the Ford exhibits at the Chicago Fair, the new signs consist of a central tower showroom flanked by two wings constituting the painted bulletins carrying the copy.

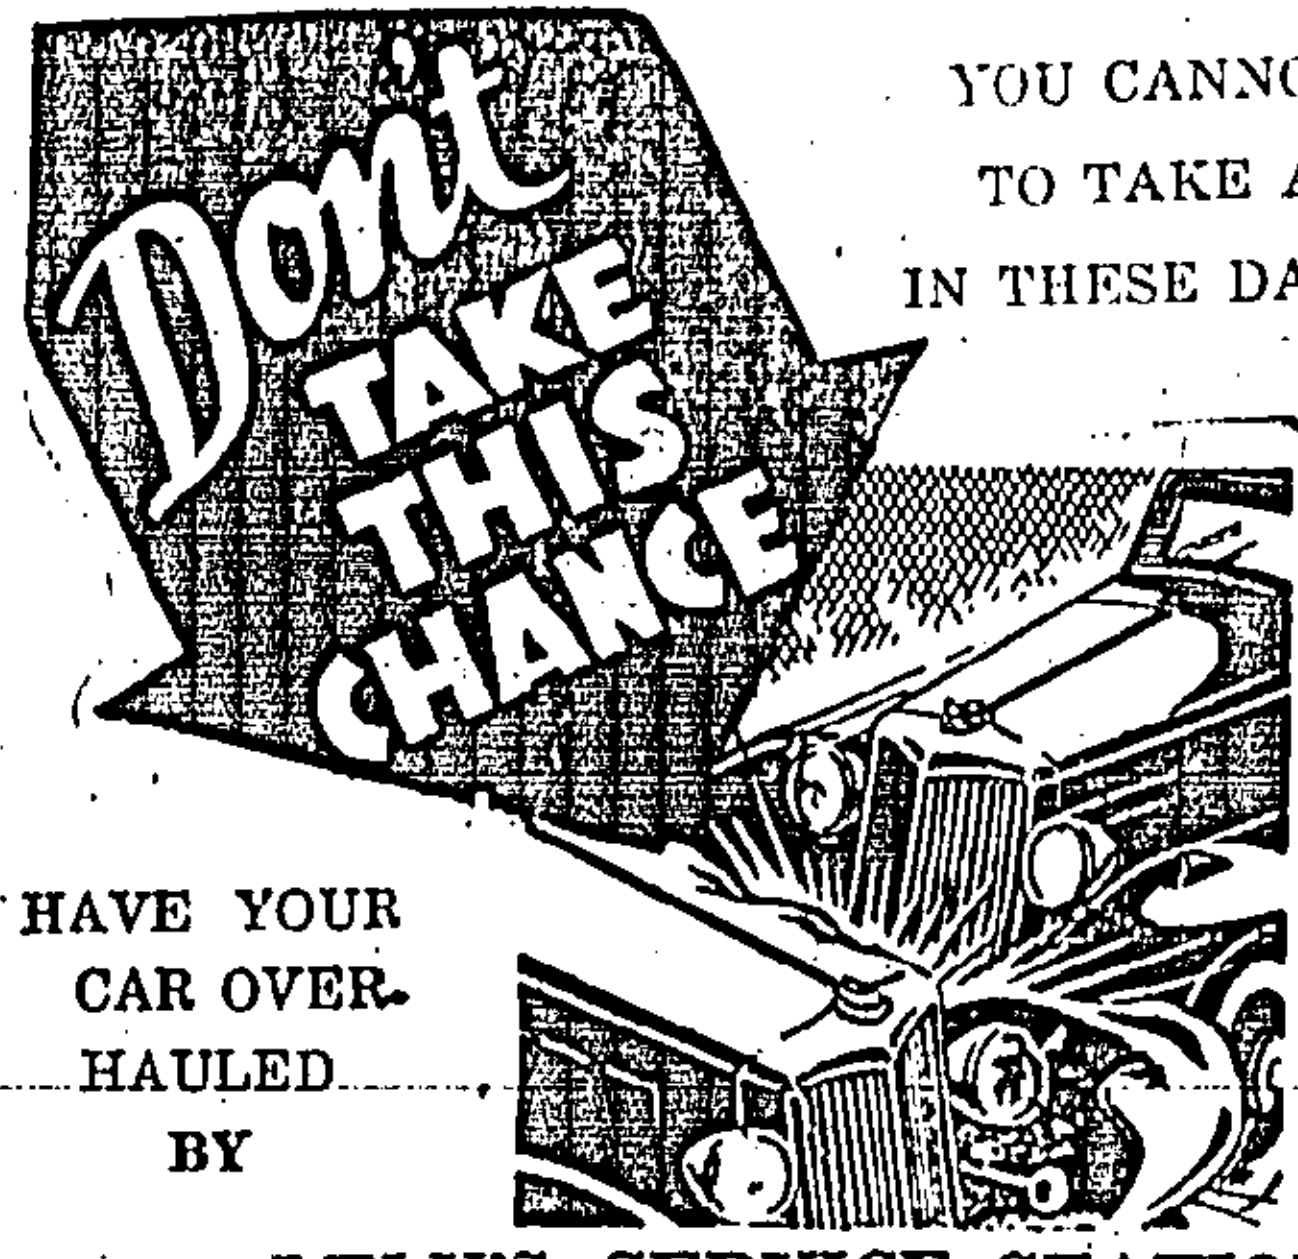

The structures are 26 feet high and 106 feet long. The car in the showroom is to be placed on a revolving platform and lit by coloured spots at night, and will be changed weekly.

MARIGOLD FOR SAFETY

Marigold-coloured road surfaces are to be the latest contributions to road safety. They can be provided on concrete surfaces, giving good visibility by day and night, and eliminating sun dazzle.

MAHARAJAH BUYS NEW CAR

Thrupp and Maberly Ltd., have had the honour of supplying 40/60 h.p. Rolls-Royce with a T. and M. Sedan-de-Ville body to the Maharajah of Patiala. Before being shipped to India this car was in use for the Jubilee celebrations.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

PARTNER'S FINESSE

(By Lt.-Col. H. M. BEASLEY)

IS it right to finesse against your partner at Contract? There are many occasions when it is correct to do so, and others when it would be fatal.

A correspondent has asked me to give instances of when it is correct. I will therefore select a simple case—a situation which frequently arises—when you are playing against a game contract in No. Trumps.

The bidding is as follows:—
South West North East
1 No Trumps — 2 No Trumps —
3 No Trumps —

West leads the six of Diamonds, and the suit is distributed as follows:—

North:—
D—7 5 2
West:—
D—6
East:—
D—A J 3
South:—
D—?

What does the six of Diamonds represent? If we assume that West had led his fourth best Diamond, we can apply the rule of eleven and by subtracting six from eleven can determine that there are five cards higher than the six of Diamonds distributed between North, East, and South.

Dummy holds one, and East holds two, therefore South, the declarer, must hold two cards higher than the six.

What should East play holding the Ace, Jack, Three? East should play the Jack, and here is the justification for his action in finessing against his partner.

South, the declarer, may hold the King, 9, 4, and when East plays the Jack on the first trick, he will feel it imperative to win the trick with his King, inasmuch as he does not know whether the opening lead by West was from a suit headed by the Ace, Queen.

If East plays the Ace on the first trick and does not finesse against his partner, South can then hold up the King until the third round of Diamonds is played, with the result that he will prevent West from cashing in any winning tricks he may hold in the suit, unless he has a sure card of re-entry.

This finesse of the Jack in a situation of this order will, of course, cost you a trick if the declarer holds the Queen, 9, 4, and not the King, 9, 4.

Britain's Coming Air Armada

Now, instead of bombers cruising at about 75 m.p.h. with a range of less than 400 miles, we have twin-engined night bombers which can cruise at about 130 m.p.h., day bombers which can cruise at 160 m.p.h., and types which can be given fuel for a range of 1,000 miles as well as a heavy load of bombs.

Machines like the Handley Page Heyford, which are directly descended from the first of their giant machines, took part in the review, but not even they represent the maximum achievement of the modern bomber.

The old Bristol Fighter was a very popular machine in its day. It remained in the R.A.F. until recent years. So was the DH 9A. But the two-seater fighter like the Hawker "Demon" has taken their place. Here again speeds of 200 m.p.h. or more against 100 m.p.h. mark the advance of the last 17 years.

The new expansion scheme is going to add about 2,700 pilots to the existing total of that number.

Their training bears no comparison with the short period of dual instruction, and little else, which was all we got during the war.

Either at the cadet college at Cranwell or through the short service commission on the new pilots receives many months of training and long hours of tuition before he himself takes a machine up, and is fully efficient in the type of duties in which he elects to specialise.

Only the type of training machine remains much the same. The old Avro 504 K, which was evolved by Sir Allot Verdon Roe before the war, did duty for over

FELL FROM BRIDGE UNDER TRAIN

Miraculous Escape

A 30-years-old builder's labourer at Westthoughton, Lancashire, recently.

Fell 25ft. from a bridge under a train entering Hilton House Station.

Lay between the rails while the train passed over him, apparently without touching him.

The man, John William White, of 18, Gladstone-road Farnworth, who received injuries to his head and arms as a result of the fall, was taken to hospital.

Nevertheless, it is the safest way of dealing with this combination, and especially when you come to the conclusion, after seeing the cards in Dummy, that it is unlikely that your partner holds a card of re-entry.

POLITICAL DIFFERENCES IN THE NORTH

Reasons For Wang's Resignation

POLICY SHARPLY CRITICISED IN SOUTH-WEST

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Canton, Yesterday.
Political differences between Mr. Wang Ching-wei and General Chiang Kai-shek are the main cause for the resignation of the former from his post of President of the Executive Yuan and concurrently Minister of Foreign Affairs, it is indicated to-day in well-informed circles here.

Canton leaders are highly critical of the policy towards Japan of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, who is held responsible for the loss of the four North-eastern provinces and the virtual loss of Chahar and Hopei to Japan. He assumed the post in February, 1932, on the platform of "prolonged resistance to Japanese aggression," but his latest slogan is "Sino-Japanese amity and co-operation."

Recently Mr. Wang has been in close touch with the Japanese, who hint a desire that Mr. Wang should remain in his two important posts. General Chiang is reported, however, to have offered the post of President of the Executive Yuan to Dr. Wang Chung-hui or Mr. Sun Fo, because he wishes to change the policy towards Japan.

Mr. Wang's resignation is a sort of reculer pour mieux sauter. It is believed that General Chiang will have to ask Mr. Wang to withdraw his resignation, as other officials may not have the confidence of Japan. While in Tsingtao, Mr. Wang is in frequent contact with Japanese officials through Mr. Tang Yu-jen, Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The Leftist party of which Mr. Wang was once the head was dissolved years ago and is now known as the Reorganisationist Party.

ANOTHER MINISTER RESIGNS

Nanking Official Asks To Be Relieved

Nanking, Yesterday.
Following the resignation of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, Foreign Minister, the Chairman of the Overseas Affairs Commission, Mr. Chen Shu-jen, petitioned the Executive Yuan last evening, asking that he might be relieved of his office.

Mr. Chen Shu-jen does not give any definite reason, but deplores the lack of accomplishments during his tenure of office and requests the Government to appoint a more able person to succeed him.

Mr. Chen's petition is addressed to the Acting President of the Executive Yuan, Mr. H. H. Kung.—Reuter.

GARETH JONES IN DISPUTED TERRITORY

It is learned now that five bands of emissaries are converging on the bandit gang, with the object of negotiating with the leader. Three are going from the Chahar authorities, and two Manchukuo bands are going on the instructions of the Japanese military authorities. It is expected that their efforts will show definite results soon.—Reuter.

BREAST-STROKE SWIMMING MARK BETTERED IN U.S.

Spence's Record Beaten By Unknown

HEILHERN'S METEORIC RISE
Charleston, South Carolina, Yesterday.

An unknown swimmer suddenly leapt into the limelight yesterday when Gene Heilhern clocked 65 3-10 seconds for the 100 Yards Breast-Stroke, to shatter Walter Spence's world record by 1 1/2 seconds!—Reuter.

Walter Spence, one of America's finest aquatic all-rounders, besides holding the world's records for the 200 and 220 yards Breast-Stroke events, is also the holder of the National Indoor titles for the 100 Yards Free Style and the 220 Yards Free Style.

FINE ALL-ROUNDER

His time for the former distance was 51 2-5 seconds, or 1 2-5 seconds outside Johnny Weissmuller's 1927 world record.

Walter Spence secured the world's 100 Yards Breast-Stroke record when he shattered Jean Cartonnet's record of 73 8-5 seconds by 6 4-5 seconds!

In spite of Walter Spence's phenomenal time for the 100 Yards and the 220, he is only among America's second string sprinters!

HOW LOCAL ACE COMPARES

Kwok Chun-hang the Colony and Interport Breast-Stroke champion's best time over the 100 Yards was recorded during his triumphant Australian tour when he clocked 70 seconds at the Bonella Swimming Club's gala to break the Australian national record.

The best time he achieved in the Colony was during the H.K. I.A.S.A. championships in 1933, when he was timed at 72 seconds.

AGED WOMAN FALLS DRESS REFORM INTO NULLAH

Fatal Accident On May Road

A fatal accident occurred at about 11.30 a.m. yesterday when a 60-year-old widow, Tong Yuet, of No. 48, Staunton Street, first floor, lost her footing while cutting grass and fell into the nullah in May Road, near the Peak Tram line.
Passers-by saw the deceased body lying in the nullah and informed the police, who arrived on the scene and removed the body to the Public Mortuary.
The body was identified by the daughter of the deceased.

Authorities Remain Obdurate

NEW REGULATIONS CAUSE SOME DIFFICULTIES

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
"To dress fashionably indicates a lack of intelligence and brings about inconvenience," declared a publicity official of the Bureau of Public Safety in a radio speech last night over the Municipal Broadcasting Station.
Urging the modern women not to imitate the dress of stage or screen stars, the official said that actresses are out to entertain, and that their mode of attire should not be followed by non-professional women. He requested fathers and husbands to advise their daughters and wives not to dress too brilliantly.

UNCONVENTIONAL MODES

"It is unconventional for men to walk about the street in sleeping clothes or in shirt sleeves," he added. "Underclothes can be worn in the bed room or inside the house but certainly not in the streets. We therefore urge the people to dress according to the Government specifications."
"This new ruling will be enforced. The Government is determined to do this regardless of difficulties. Those who think that the Government will falter in this reform are much mistaken."
Poor people are wondering whether they will have to buy long gowns or European dress in order to comply with the new regulations. Many of them are naked to the waist, whether at home or in the street. Others wear sleeping clothes in the house and public places. To them the tunic is (Continued in next column.)

MOTHERWELL WIN BUT CELTIC BEATEN

London, Last night

Glasgow Rangers, the champions, commenced the 1935-36 Scottish League football season with a 6-0 win over Arbroath, newcomers to the League, at Hampden Park to-day.

Third Lanark, back again in the premier division, went down to St. Johnstone by 3 goals to 1, while the Celtic lost a battle royal at Aberdeen and Dundee shared the spoils with Hamilton.

Motherwell, a disappointing team last year, opened promisingly at Kilmarnock with an odd goal win, but Queen's Park, the leading amateur club in Scotland, were defeated at home by Ayr.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were:

Aberdeen	3 Celtic	1
Aldon	1 Dunfermline	3
Clyde	1 Airdrie	1
Hamilton	2 Dundee	2
Hearts	2 Partick	0
Kilmarnock	2 Motherwell	3
Queen's Park	1 Ayr	2
Rangers	6 Arbroath	0
St. Johnstone	3 Third Lanark	1

ORDERS FOR NEW CLOTHES

The Government regulations require males to change into street attire when they go out, but coolies and rickshaw pullers cannot afford this change. On account of the hot weather, they wear only trousers. Some smart men go about in shorts and shirts only, and this is deemed a violation of the dress reform rule.
Fashionable women continue to dress in the latest chic clothes, which do full justice to their figures. They find it uncomfortable to be completely clothed during the hot summer. Orders for new clothes will be necessary to comply with the Government requirements.
